FIND GUILTY MAN, FRANK'S LAWYER TOLD PINKERTONS

"You Are Employed to Hunt Down Murderer, It Matters Not Who He Is," Luther Rosser Informs Detectives.

GRAND JURY TO PROBE MYSTERY NEXT WEEK

Solicitor Dorsey States That He Wants All the Evidence Ready to Submit to Jurors Before Opening Hearing.

Officials of the Pinkerton National Detective agency, who were brought into the Phagan case through Leo M. Frank, recently went to authorities of the Natic al Pencil company, it is stated, and, in the presence of Leo M. Frank's counsel, Luther Z. Rosser, said:

"We want to make our position clear. The Pinkertons have been employed to apprehend the murderer of Mary Phagan. That is our intention, and if anybody can find her slayer we can. Shall we continue on the case?"

Mr. Rosser, who has been retained as Frank's attorney since the superintendent was first arrested, spoke up:

"Find the murderer of Mary Phagan. Work in co-operation with the police—work with anyone, work any way which might lead you to success. Let your chips fall where they may. You are employed to hunt the murderer until he is found and convicted. It matters not who is guilty."

Five Men on Case.

Five picked men, under command of Assistant Superintendent Harry Scott, are working exclusively on the mystery. Scott, through Detective John Black, of headquarters, is working in co-operation with the police.

For several years Attorney Rosser has represented the National Pencil company, mostly in civil cases. When Frank, the plant superintendent, was first detained by the police, Mr. Rosser, in capacity of the concern's counsel, was chosen to represent him. It has erroneously been reported that the well-known lawyer was retained personally by the suspected man, and was engaged when Frank was first detained.

The prisoner was visited in his cell at the Tower Sunday by Mr. Rosser. They were together only a short while. To a Constitution reporter, Mr. Rosser stated that he had only inquired about Frank's health, and had not discussed the case. Among the large number of visitors to Frank during Sunday were several classmates of Cornell, of which college he is a graduate.

The Girl in Red.

The rumor that the "mysterious girl in red," who is said to have appeared in a Marietta grocery store and announced that she had accompanied Mary Phagan to the pencil factory, had again shown up and told of her alleged visit with the victim to the plant, injected renewed energy into the widespread search for her.

A squad of detectives and members of the solicitor's staff are scouring the community in and around Smyrna, Marietta, Mapleton and the neighboring section.

Because of their inability to find further clues of the mysterious girl's identity, the sleuths are beginning to doubt her existence, and believe she is a product of some fanciful brain.

Grand Jury Will Act.

The mystery of Mary Phagan's murder Sunday morning was fourteen days old. No progress was made throughout the day by either the solicitor's staff or the detective department. It remains in precisely the same status as was reported by the Sunday newspapers.

Solicitor Dorsey stated last night, however, that he was undecided as to whether or not he would submit the case to the grand jury when it met this week. It would probably be next week, he said, before such action would be taken. This statement will surprise the hundreds of persons who placed credence in the rumor that the Phagan case would go before the jury Monday morning.

Wants Substantial Case.

The solicitor's plan in delaying, he said to a reporter for The Constitution, is to place his case upon a firm foundation before submitting it to the jurors.

He was asked if he did not think that the case against the superintendent and negro watchman, in its present state, was sufficient to merit indictments.

"No, I do not mean that," he answered. "I will not commit myself in that respect. What I do mean, however, is that I desire to consider the case more carefully, sifting out the unimportant and building up the important details so as to expedite the work of the jury."

The efforts of the solicitor on Sunday were confined to examining a num-

ATLANTA TO WIN, DECLARES ADAIR

Yaarab Temple Given Great Reception Upon Arrival in Dallas to Bid for the Next Meeting of Imperial Shrine.

By Fred Houser.

Dallas, Tex., May 11.—(Special.)—Yaarab temple reached Dallas this morning, and the magnificent body was received with acclaim and escorted to headquarters through streets decorated with shrine colors and lined by cheering crowds.

The campaign to land the next meeting at Atlanta was already under way when the delegation arrived, and the members went into the work of getting support with enthusiasm.

Potentate Forrest Adair said tonight: "There is nothing to it but Atlanta. I have so many assurances of support that it is merely a matter of taking the vote. There is no doubt about the spirit of the nobles, and we are going to win in a walk."

Out of the great number of temples scheduled to attend the convention, there are but a few already here, but all are expected in tonight and tomorrow.

Formal sessions of the gathering will open Tuesday. There is ample hotel accommodations, but every available foot of space will be utilized.

Imperial Potentate William J. Cunningham, of Baltimore, expressed the opinion that the gathering will be one most enjoyable and most largely attended in the history of the order.

The convention will be in session for three days.

Infuriated Negroes Attempt to Lynch Young Boy's Slayer

Thwarted by Officers at Scene of Crime, Crowd Tries to Get Prisoner in Front of Tower.

Three members of the county police force, Lieutenant J. M. Carroll and Officers J. W. Williams and L. W. Allen, fought off a mob of 200 negroes, infuriated at the killing of Charlie Simon, a 16-year-old colored boy, when they arrested the slayer, Doc Burnett, another negro, on Marietta road at Fishers avenue at 6:30 o'clock yesterday evening.

The maddened blacks declared that it had been a cold-blooded murder, and demanded that the officers turn Burnett over to them, saying that they would "string him up." The policemen were obliged to draw their revolvers and stand off the mob for nearly half an hour while they waited for a car to bring them to town.

Attacked at the Tower.

When they reached the Tower another attempt was made to take their prisoner away from them. A score of blacks who had rushed to town immediately after the killing, attacked them just as they reached the jail. They did not attempt violence to the officers, merely trying to wrest Burnett away from them.

They were dispersed only after their leader had been beaten into unconsciousness by the officers.

The killing occurred shortly after 6 o'clock on Marietta road. Burnett declared after he had been captured that the trouble had been caused by an argument over a girl.

Officers Hurry to Scene.

Eye witnesses say that he simply drew a knife and stabbed Simon in the heart without giving him a chance to put up a fight. The county police*men* were nearby when it happened, and hurried to the scene when they saw a crowd congregating. Pushing their way through the throng that had already surrounded Burnett, they caught and handcuffed him.

In a few minutes, they were obliged to draw their revolvers to keep back the negroes, who first tried to lynch and then to frighten them into turning their prisoner over to them.

"We're going to get that nigger," declared one, who seemed to be a leader, to Lieutenant Carroll, "even if we have to kill you."

The police fought them back, however, and were finally able to get away without even firing a shot. In the meantime headquarters were notified and Acting Chief Lockhart rushed an auto full of men to the scene, getting there in 18 minutes. Burnett had already been brought to the Tower, where he is held for murder.

WILSON CIRCLES AROUND CAPITOL IN AUTOMOBILE

Frequent Dashes of the President Have Been Keeping Members of Congress in a Flutter.

WHITE HOUSE KEEPS CLOSE TO CONGRESS

President Even Takes Hand in Organization of the House Committees—The Currency Question Is Considered.

Washington, May 11.—Members of congress were chatting near a window of the house lobby the other day, when one of them suddenly exclaimed:

"There goes the president; wonder if he's coming in."

Half a dozen representatives, followed by pages and messengers, rushed toward the windows while several ran to the balcony and watched the president's automobile as it whizzed across the capitol esplanade, passed the east main entrance and disappeared toward the senate wing.

Satisfied that the president was not coming to the house, the members returned to the tariff debate, while messengers hurriedly telephoned to the senate side that the president had just passed and might be headed for the senate. Employees and newspaper men in the senate wing then scrambled toward the windows just in time to see the president's car rolling down the hill toward Pennsylvania avenue. He merely had circled the capitol on his afternoon ride.

Wilson's Car in Evidence.

Three times this occurred last week, several times the week before, and on every occasion the president's car was noticed and the legislative branch of the government got a thrill. One day the president actually did go to the senate, his third visit to the president's room since his inauguration. On this occasion he went to consult with senators about appointments, and several nominations were sent to the senate before the visit was concluded.

These frequent trips President Wilson makes up Capitol hill while congress is in session and his visits to the senate to confer will not cause much excitement in the future because congress is getting used to Mr. Wilson's habits since he brushed aside the precedents of a century and personally delivered his tariff message in the house. The president's known purpose to keep in active touch with legislative and political affairs, first evidenced when he virtually dictated the free wool and the sugar schedules, was further emphasized last week when he, by personal endeavors, delayed re-organization of the democratic congressional campaign committee and again when he summoned house leaders to talk over the organization of standing committees.

Caused Considerable Comment.

His participation in the congressional committee plans caused considerable comment. It had been planned to reorganize the congressional committee and to elect Representative Ben Johnson, of Kentucky, chairman. Johnson was the candidate championed by the friends of Speaker Clark, and had also the speaker's indorsement, but at the president's request the election did not take place, old officers holding over temporarily until the president could be consulted further.

The president's policy of maintaining close relations with congress will continue this week when he will seek to sound the sentiment of the senate with regard to plans for currency legislation and watch the work of the ways and means committee in reorganizing the house. He has particular interest in the make-up of the banking and currency committee, having conferred with Majority Leader Underwood about it last night. He expects to ask Mr. Underwood and the committee, which Representative Carter Glass is to head, is announced.

It has been made known to the president that many senators and representatives don't wish to pass a currency bill in the special session after the tariff is disposed of. All are willing to have currency reform started, to prepare for hearings and a study of the question that a bill may be ready when congress meets in December. This is Majority Leader Underwood's view and that of many influential senators.

Currency Question to Fore.

The president's announcement through Mr. Underwood that he desired currency regulation at this ses-

Emory Boys Are Here Today To Gather and to Edit News For Tuesday's Constitution

At last the day has come for the invasion of The Constitution office by a score of Emory college boys who have been studying journalism under Dr. W. F. Melton, and the news of Tuesday morning will be gathered by these embryonic reporters.

Dr. Melton has long had the idea that he would like to give his class newspaperman calls "local color," and cried work of the class room and text book and his first plan was to have lectures given the students by active newspaper men who made a success in the principal cities of the state.

Later he determined to show his class a real newspaper office where they could get some of what the newspapermen calls "local color," and find out for themselves how the work is carried on. He took the matter up with The Constitution and was given a cordial invitation to bring the college men to Atlanta and let them see the inside of a modern newspaper plant.

From the gathering of facts in the thousand and one by-ways of Atlanta to the writing of "copy," the editing, writing of heads and marking to the rush of the linotype machine, the students will be shown all that goes on in a modern newspaper office. They will also learn of the process of making the matrix or "mat" from which the semi-cylinder that goes on the presses is moulded, and will be taken to the basement to watch the Constitutions flow in a never-ending stream from the mouth of the mammoth press.

To the layman there is something of an air of mystery that pervades a newspaper office as it does no other place where men earn their daily bread, and there is hardly anyone who does not welcome an invitation to go through the plant. The Emory men will have far more than that in the actual experience they will get in working upon an edition of The Constitution.

ATLANTIC FLEET AT THE MAINE DEDICATION.

The navy department has ordered the entire Atlantic fleet, with the exception of two battleships, to New York to take part in the dedication of the Maine monument on Memorial day. The fleet will come to New York with a new commander-in-chief, a new fleet flagship and a new fourth division commander. The number of vessels that will steam into the Hudson several days in advance of Memorial day will be about nineteen battleships, twenty destroyers and a dozen naval auxiliaries. The flag of Rear Admiral Charles J. Badger, the new commander-in-chief, will fly from the super-Dreadnought Wyoming, and the Connecticut, the famous around-the-world flagship, will be seen as the second vessel of the fourth division under command of Rear Admiral Frank E. Beatty, another newcomer among the Atlantic fleet flag officers. The coming battleships also include the Arkansas, Florida, Utah, North Dakota and Delaware, the dreadnoughts South Carolina and Michigan, and the first line battleships Vermont, Louisiana, New Hampshire, Virginia, Georgia, Nebraska, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Kansas and Ohio. The Minnesota and Idaho will be missing, being on duty in Mexican waters. The monument will be unveiled with elaborate ceremonies.

STRIKE AT CINCINNATI PROVES TO BE DEADLY

Three Men Fatally Injured in Clash—Street Car System Tied Up.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 11.—One man was probably fatally injured and three others were hurt today when the first clash between the employees of the local traction company and strikers and their sympathizers occurred. When the company attempted to move several of its cars Charles Weber a motorman, of Chicago, was pulled off his car and injured internally. He is not expected to live. The injuries to the other three, all strike sympathizers, were from thrown missiles and are not serious.

Two other fatal injuries due incidentally to the strike occurred. John Cochran, who attended a meeting of the Coopers' union, which passed resolutions favoring the strikers, fell down a flight of stairs in leaving the hall and broke his neck. William Goode, a negro, was fatally shot by another negro after an argument about the strike.

The strike, which began Friday night, again today completely tied up the street car transportation system of the city. After the futile effort in the morning to move a few cars, the street car company officials confined their activities to securing men for tomorrow when a determined effort, it is said, will be made to resume service.

Two hundred men to be used as motormen and conductors came in this morning and were escorted by police to a street car barn. Some of these volunteered for work immediately and six cars were started. Mobs which had gathered in the streets obstructed the passage of the cars, and it was in one of these clashes that Weber received his injuries.

One of the cars was partially destroyed by fire after being overturned. The others returned to their barns.

PACKAGE OF DIAMONDS SHIPPED FROM MACON IS STOLEN IN TRANSIT

Macon, Ga., May 11.—(Special.)—Superintendent Smith, of the Southern Express company, and Pinkerton detectives are here today conducting an investigation into the mysterious disappearance of a package shipped by Rice & Armstrong, a local jewelry firm, to H. W. White & Co., jewelry brokers of New York, containing three large diamonds, the wholesale value of which is estimated at $2,500.

The package is thought to have disappeared at Norfolk, where, it is said, certain irregularities occurred in the handling.

Today a large number of employees of the Southern Express company from various points between here and New York were examined by the detectives. A package resembling the one sent by the local jewelry firm reached the White company in New York, but it developed it was one which had been substituted for the one containing the diamonds.

Pretty Girls on Street Today Will Tag Every Man They See For Sheltering Arms Benefit

"You're It."

This is what two hundred pretty girls will say on the street today to every man that passes. And at the same time a nice, neat little tag will be pinned on "its" coat lapel, which will cost anywhere from a nickel up, mostly up, for this is tag day for the Sheltering Arms.

On every uptown corner, in every hotel and office building the fair taggers will be stationed, and even the "meanest man" will not have half a chance to escape the smiles—and the tag.

A number of Atlanta's most prominent society girls, properly chaperoned, will assist in the work, and "smile" the silver out of the pockets of the populace.

Tag day has always been a great success in Atlanta, as the men especially "come across" handsomely when the girls play tag.

WILSON CALLS ON CALIFORNIA TO DELAY ACTION

Telegram Sent to Gov. Johnson Urging That He Refuse to Sign the Anti-Japanese Measure.

JOHNSON IS INFORMED OF JAPANESE PROTEST

President Tells Governor if Bill Is Vetoed Questions at Issue Can Be Settled by Diplomatic Methods.

Washington, May 11.—The federal government's final effort to delay alien land owning legislation in California was made tonight, when Secretary Bryan, in the name of President Wilson, telegraphed Governor Johnson, notifying him that the Japanese ambassador had earnestly protested against the bill passed by the California assembly, and urging that the governor postpone action by withholding his signature.

The Message to Johnson.

Secretary Bryan's telegram, which was framed after a conference with the president yesterday, was dispatched tonight, and made public at the white house a few minutes later.

It was as follows:

"The president directs me to express his appreciation of your courtesy in delaying action on the land bill now before you, until communications could be communicated to the Japanese government and considered by it.

"His Excellency, Baron Chinda, has, on behalf of his government, presented an earnest protest against the measure. As you have before you but two alternatives, viz: to approve or to veto, it will add nothing to recall to your attention the amendments suggested to the legislature; and as the president has already laid before you his views upon the subject, it is unnecessary to reiterate them.

Questions of Treaty Rights.

"He passes over the questions affecting treaty rights for two reasons; first, because the bill passed by the legislature is avowedly intended to conform to treaty obligations, and, second, because any conflict complained of would be a matter for the courts, but the president feels justified in expressing again his desire that action on the subject be deferred for this session, and he expresses the desire the more freely, because the legislature can be reconvened at any time if the welfare of the state requires it.

"He is fully alive to the importance of removing any root of discord which may create antagonism between American citizens and the subjects of Oriental nations residing here, but he is impelled by a sense of duty to express the hope that you will see fit to allow time for diplomatic effort. The nation's affected by the proposed law are friendly nations—nations that have shown themselves willing to co-operate in the establishment of harmonious relations between their people and ours.

"If a postponement commends itself to your judgment the president will be pleased to co-operate in a systematic effort to discover and correct any evils that may exist in connection with land owning by aliens."

Many Conferences Held.

The decision of the administration to urge Governor Johnson to use his power of veto to postpone any land legislation was reached after a series of conferences between the president Secretary Bryan and John Bassett Moore, counsellor of the state department, and frequent visits of the department by Ambassador Chinda. It was realized that any further attempt to have the bill enacted by the California legislature amended would be fruitless, since Secretary Bryan's trip to Sacramento was unavailing and the legislature is to adjourn next Tuesday.

Until Governor Johnson's reply is received the government probably will make no reply to the protest of Japan further than to acquaint the ambassador with the fact that every possible effort has been made to have action in California delayed, pending a settlement of the problems involved by diplomacy.

Important Negotiations.

Whether or not the governor complies with the administration's request, there probably will be important diplomatic negotiations between the United States and Japan immediately. If the land bill is vetoed the president and Secretary Bryan will have to undertake to carry out their promise to accomplish through diplomacy the ends sought by the Californians.

There has been no intimation of what may be expected in the event the governor gives the bill his signature. However, a test in the courts is regarded as a certainty if the law becomes effective, and in spite of the silence at the white house and state department, there is still talk outside of the possibility of employing the referendum as a means for delaying the effectiveness of the proposed law for at least nearly two years.

REFERENDUM MAY BE TAKEN ON THE ANTI-JAPANESE BILL

Sacramento, Cal., May 11.—Theodore A. Bell, democratic leader and candidate for governor two years ago, who believes the Webb alien land bill is useless on account of the clause permitting leases, said tonight:

"If the governor signs the alien land bill, referendum petitions will be in circulation all over the state within a few hours. They are already printed and ready for distribution, and it will be only a matter of a short time before the necessary 20,000 signatures are obtained."

It has been agreed by the majority leaders in the legislature that a bill introduced by Senator A. Caminetti, providing for a new census of the Japanese population of the state and the collection of certain other statistics concerning resident aliens of that nationality, shall be refused passage.

Senator Caminetti's resolution providing for the appointment of a commission of five to present California's case before the president and congress is likewise doomed to defeat.

GOV. JOHNSON WILL REPLY TO WASHINGTON MESSAGE

Sacramento, Cal., May 11.—Governor Johnson received the communication from Secretary of State Bryan at a few minutes before 10 o'clock tonight, but declined to make any comment upon it other than to say he would formulate his reply as soon as possible.

"Will you telegraph your reply tonight?" he was asked.

"No, not until tomorrow morning at the earliest," replied the governor.

SOUTHERN BAPTISTS TO MEET IN ST. LOUIS

Convention Proposes to Raise Million-Dollar Memorial Fund to Judson.

St. Louis, Mo., May 11.—The Southern Baptist convention, which represents 26,000 churches throughout the southern states and a membership of two and a half million, will meet here next Wednesday and continue in session until the following Monday. Four thousand delegates and visitors are expected.

The principal question to come before the convention is the raising of a million-dollar fund to commemorate the hundredth anniversary of the inauguration of missionary work in India by Adoniram Judson.

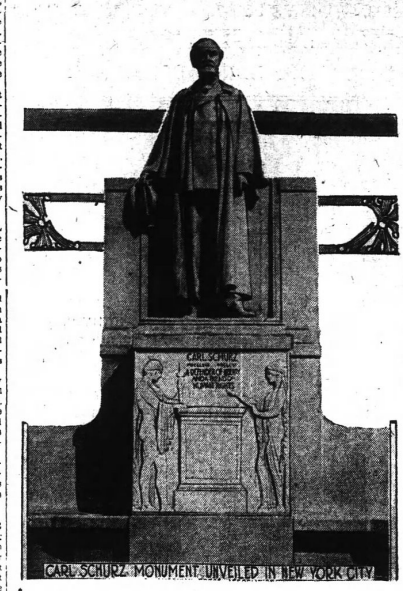
Order Brith Abraham.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 11.—Delegates representing a large majority of the 386 lodges of the Order Brith Abraham attended the first session of its twenty-first biennial convention here today. The convention will be in session until Wednesday. In his annual report Grand Master Dorf recommended a revision of the endowment system, urged the abolition of the office of assistant grand secretary and the addition of three members to the executive board, including one for Louisiana and other southern states.

Railway Telegraphers.

Baltimore, Md., May 11.—The biennial convention of the grand division of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers will open here tomorrow morning and continue until May 19. More than 400 delegates, representing telegrahers on 105 railroads of this country, Canada and Mexico, and 250 members of the ladies' auxiliary are expected.

Monument to Carl Schurz



CARL SCHURZ MONUMENT UNVEILED IN NEW YORK CITY.

The unveiling of the monument in New York erected in honor of Carl Schurz was planned with elaborate ceremonies, including a big parade, consisting mainly of German-American societies, and addresses extolling the many virtues of the famous humanitarian. Joseph H. Choate was chairman of the committee which arranged the unveiling, and Representative Richard Bartholdt, of Missouri, was selected as one of the principal orators. The monument was designed by Karl Bitter, a New York sculptor, and was erected by popular subscription. There was interest among German-Americans the country over in the event.

THE PHAGAN CASE DAY BY DAY

The history of the baffling Phagan mystery, daily recorded, is briefly as follows:

Sunday, April 26—Girl's body found in basement of pencil factory. Newt Lee, negro night watchman, who made discovery, arrested. Arthur Mullinax, street car employee, also arrested. Both held on suspicion.

Monday—Leo M. Frank, factory superintendent, detained, but later released. J. M. Gantt, former bookkeeper of pencil concern and friend of dead girl, arrested in Marietta. Negro elevator boy also taken into custody. Pinkertons enter case.

Tuesday—Bloody shirt found at negro watchman's home. Planted evidence theory advanced. Mary Phagan's body buried. Sleuths announce they have evidence to convict. Frank confers with negro suspect.

Wednesday—Inquest begins. Newt Lee testifies. One hundred and fifty pencil factory employees summoned before coroner. George Epps, newsboy, tells of ride to uptown with Mary Phagan on her last trip.

Thursday—Frank and Lee ordered to Fulton tower on warrants issued by Coroner Donehoo. Trip made without incident.

Friday—Both prisoners tell reporter for The Constitution at 1 a. m. that they are not guilty and will prove their innocence.

Saturday—Evidence is unearthed that impostors, pretending to be Pinkerton detectives, are questioning leading witnesses. No arrests made.

Sunday, May 4—Detectives again announce their belief that they can convict murderer, whoever he is.

Monday—Paul P. Bowen, former Atlanta youth, arrested in Houston under suspicion of complicity in slaying. Is released at night.

Tuesday—Detectives obtain affidavit from woman who alleges she heard screams from basement of factory building at 4:30 p. m. on Memorial day.

Wednesday—Testimony is secured from Monteen Stover that she visited pencil plant at 12:05 noon on Memorial day and that offices were deserted.

Thursday—Inquest resumed. Character witnesses are examined. Frank and Lee ordered by jury to be held under suspicion of murder for grand jury investigation.

Friday—Mrs. Nancy Caldwell, of 10 Gray street, is examined by detectives under belief that she was the "mysterious girl in red" who was supposed to have visited factory with Mary Phagan. She establishes alibi.

Saturday—Three more Pinkerton detectives put to work on investigation. No developments at police headquarters. Solicitor general examines 100 witnesses.

Sunday, May 11—Solicitor Dorsey announces that grand jury will probably not take action until early next week.

DELEGATES BEGIN TO ARRIVE TODAY

Hundreds of Presbyterians Reach Atlanta on Monday and Tuesday—Conferences to Precede Opening.

With the opening of the pre-assembly conference only one day ahead, and the great gathering of the Presbyterians of America due to begin next Thursday, the eyes of the nation are turning toward Atlanta—the host on this history-making occasion.

Several dozen prominent Presbyterians will arrive in the city Monday, while hundreds will be here by Tuesday for the pre-assembly conferences which will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday. These conferences will consider every phase of the institutional problems of the three organizations—the Northern, the Southern and the United Presbyterian churches. The location of these conferences has been announced by the committees as follows:

Conferences Begin Tuesday.

Conference on Education—First Baptist church, beginning Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and lasting through Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, participated in by the commissioners to the United States (Southern) assembly.

Conference on Evangelism—North Avenue Presbyterian church, beginning Wednesday morning, being a joint conference of all commissioners.

College Presidents' Conference—Harris Street church, Wednesday morning, afternoon and evening.

Conference on Education—Baptist tabernacle, Wednesday, held by the delegates to the U. S. A. assembly.

Conference on Theological Seminaries, U. S. A.—Central Congregational church, Wednesday at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m.

Conference on Laymen's Missionary Movement—First Presbyterian church, Wednesday night.

Joint Conference on Foreign Missions—First Presbyterian church, Wednesday night.

Conference on Missions, by U. S. A. Commissioners—Harris Street church, Wednesday morning and afternoon.

Auditorium Meeting Thursday.

Next Thursday night will see the first of the great joint gatherings at the Auditorium-Armory, in which will join the commissioners of the Northern, the Southern and the U. P. churches, and the special commission of 25 from the A. R. P. church. This will be the first joint meeting of this nature held in all the history of Presbyterianism.

J. K. Orr, who is one of the commissioners to the U. S. assembly from the Atlanta Presbytery, and one of those most active in the preparations for entertainment, will make an address of welcome on the opening night, and addresses will also be heard from each of the retiring moderators—Dr. Mark A. Matthews, of the Northern church; Dr. Thomas S. Clyce, of the Southern church; Dr. H. H. Bell, of the U. P. church, and Dr. J. H. Pressly, of the A. R. P.

The main address of this meeting will be from Mr. James MacDonald, one of the most powerful lay members of the Presbyterian church, and managing editor of The Toronto Globe. Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, of the North Avenue church, Atlanta, will preside at this meeting, Thursday night, and on each evening for the next eight days an interesting program of addresses will be heard by the joint conclave of Presbyterians.

Many Addresses on Education.

Among the most interesting of the pre-assembly conferences will be that on "Education" by the Southern Presbyterian church, the program of which is herewith announced for the first time, the meetings being held in the First Baptist church, corner Peachtree and Cain:

Tuesday Afternoon—Organization. Address by Rev. Edgar Tufts, of Banner Elk, N. C., on "How Best Assist Poor Boys and Girls of the Church to Secure a Higher Education." Discussion on school and college work, led by Dr. T. P. Junkin, of Brownwood, Texas; Rev. Alfred Erickson, of Phelps, Ky., and Rev. Joseph P. Hall, of Plumtree, N. C.

Tuesday Evening—Address by Dr. W. J. Martin, of Davidson, N. C., on "How to Maintain a Thoroughly Christian Atmosphere in the Christian College." Discussion of facilities, the Bible and the chapel in colleges, student associations, etc., led by Dr. William Dinwiddie, of Clarksville, Tenn.; Rev. T. W. Raymond, of Holly Springs, Miss., and Rev. Charles B. Boving, of Fulton, Mo.

Wednesday, at 9 A. M.—Address by Rev. C. C. Vardell, of Red Springs, N. C., on "The Place of the Church School in the Educational Work in America." Discussion by Rev. M. E. Melvin, of Port Gibson, Miss.; Rev. D. M. Douglas, of Clinton, S. C., and Rev. Henry C. Evans, of Milford, Tex.

At 11 A. M.—Address by Rev. R. E. Vinson, of Austin, Texas, on "The Church Schools' Financial Problem." Discussion led by Rev. S. C. Byrd, of Greenville, S. C.; Rev. T. W. Lingle, of Davidson, N. C., and Rev. Tilden Sherer, of Bristol, Tenn.

Dr. Lingle Makes Address.

Wednesday Afternoon—Address by Rev. Walter L. Lingle, of Richmond, Va., former pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Atlanta, on the subject, "What Can the General Assembly Do for Her Schools, Colleges and Seminaries?" Discussion opened by Dr. F. H. Gaines, of Agnes Scott; Rev. John E. Travis, of Rensselaer, Mo., and Rev. H. T. Graham, of Hampden-Sidney, Va. Report of various committees.

Wednesday Evening. (Closing session of conference, in connection with U. S. A., U. P. and A. R. P. commissioners at the Harris street church)—Address by President J. Knox Montgomery, of Muskingum college, New Concord, O., on "The Bible in the College." Address on "Comity and Co-operation," by President T. S. Clyce, of Austin college, Sherman, Texas, retiring moderator of the Southern assembly.

Among those who will arrive in Atlanta Monday is Dr. Albert J. McCartney, pastor of the Kenwood Interdenominational church, of Chicago. A telegram received in Atlanta Sunday night stated that Dr. McCartney is coming to the assemblies in the interest of a union of the Presbyterian churches of America, he being one of the staunchest advocates of union throughout the ranks of the church.

Another Trial for Quinlan.

Paterson, N. J., May 11.—Patrick Quinlan, the Industrial Workers of the World leader, whose trial last week on a charge of inciting to riot in connection with the silk mill strike here resulted in a disagreement of the jury, will be placed on trial again tomorrow on the same indictment.

GREAT MOB HECKLES SUFFRAGE SPEAKERS

The Usual Sunday Riot Caused by the Women in Hyde Park.

London, May 11.—Another suffrage riot took place in Hyde park this afternoon. The Men's League for Women's Suffrage had been given permission to hold a meeting. Several prominent workers addressed a crowd of several thousand from a truck, but the crowd kept up a running fire of interruptions, shouting "go home and make bombs," and remarks about the burning of churches and the attempt to blow up St. Pauls.

After a half hour's endeavor to get a hearing the league gave up and the speakers were about to withdraw when the crowd broke through the police ranks. The wagon was overturned and partly wrecked. The police had difficulty in protecting the speakers and eventually had to escort them to the station for safety.

In the meantime a suffragette planted a flag on the park Lane side of the park where fashionable people promenade and started speaking. Men destroyed the flag and jostled the woman until the police rescued her.

The Rev. Howard J. H. Truscott, vicar of St. Catherines, at Hatcham, which was destroyed by fire recently, held services in the public hall today and spoke at length regarding the fire. He said:

"There is no use to talk to me about flashes of lightning or gas. Some person did this with malicious intent."

He said that he had received hundreds of letters, some of them from suffragettes, who repudiated such dastardly acts.

Another suffragette outrage is reported from Preston, Lancashire, where a white marble statue of the fourteenth Earl of Derby, in Miller park, has been covered with liquid tar.

Proof of Incendiarism.

Dundee, Scotland, May 11.—An examination of the ruins of Farington hall, which was destroyed by fire yesterday, has revealed ample proofs of incendiarism. The chief constable of the city has received by mail a copy of the paper, The Suffragette, inscribed:

"Farington Hall—A protest against British tyranny. Blame Asquith and company."

The mansion, which was the property of Henry McGrady, a former lord provost of Dundee, will require $100,000 to rebuild.

Dillon's House Is Stoned.

Dublin, May 11.—John Dillon, member of parliament for East Mayo, surrounded by a band of suffragettes opposite the Mansion house on Saturday, told them he would vote against them every time. Early Sunday morning Mr. Dillon's residence was bombarded with stones. Many windows were smashed.

Three women were arrested on the charge of breaking the fan lights on the premises of the United Irish league about the same time.

ber of men concerned in the mystery. He would not state the nature of the examinations or divulge the names. They were of but little importance, though, he admitted.

Public Kept Well Informed.

Mr. Dorsey, in surveying the significant evidence now at hand, stated that the public, through the newspapers, had been kept well informed of progress made by detectives and members of his staff.

"The newspapers," he said, "have kept admirably abreast of our investigation. There is little, if anything, to disclose in the line of new developments."

Harry Scott, in command of the staff of Pinkerton men at work on the case, voiced the same opinion as held by the solicitor general.

The press has informed the public of all the headway made in the Phagan mystery."

BULGARIA AND GREECE ARE AT LOGGERHEADS

London, May 11.—The Turkish delegates arrived in London today for the peace conference.

Dispatches from Sofia indicate that the Greek government is trying to delay the conclusion of peace by refusing to accept the draft of the treaty drawn up by the ambassadorial conference. The Bulgarian government, however, has notified Greece of its determination to permit no further delay in signing the peace treaty.

Friction between Bulgaria and Greece still menaces the situation. The mixed commission appointed by the two governments to reconcile the rival claims over disputed towns and territories in Macedonia have failed to reach an agreement. The two sets of representatives have arrived at absolutely opposite and irreconcilable conclusions.

OLD VESUVIUS LOSES PART OF ITS CRATER

Naples, May 11.—The activity of Mount Vesuvius, apparent for several days, reached a climax today, when part of the crater collapsed. The tremblings of the mountain could be distinctly felt, and after the explosion a funnel 250 feet deep was formed. From this dense sulphurous clouds and white smoke ascended.

Two Boys Drowned.

Knoxville, Tenn., May 11.—John Ben Rose, aged 14, and Joe Perkins, aged 16, were drowned today in Clear Fork river at Saxton, Ky. A boat containing young Rose and Silar Perkins, aged 14, capsized, Perkins swimming ashore. Joe Perkins, hearing the screams of the boys, plunged in to save his brother's friend. He reached him but could not save him and they sank together. The bodies were recovered. Both of the drowned boys attended the Jellico high school and were members of prominent families.

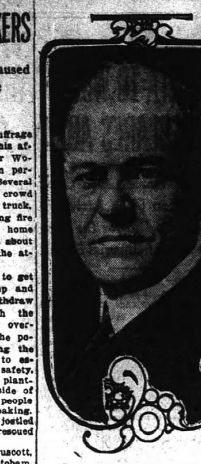
BIEDERWOLF COMING



Dr. W. E. Biederwolf.

One of the most famous evangelists of the country, whose union revival services have attracted wide attention. He was in Atlanta with Dr. Chapman at the union revival of several years ago. Dr. Biederwolf is coming to Atlanta for the assemblies, and will make an address at the pre-assembly evangelistic conference, which will be held here on May 14, the day before the opening of the assembly. Dr. Biederwolf will conduct revival services on the steamer en route to Panama after the assembly, and also in the city of Colon, in the canal zone.

100 PERSONS KILLED AND 300 ARE INJURED

When Two Bulgarian Military Trains Dash Together.

Saloniki, May 11.—Two Bulgarian military trains collided last night between Drama and Buk. One hundred persons were killed and three hundred injured.

ONLY A FEW GERMANS AT THE PEACE MEETING

Berne, Switzerland, May 11.—Under the presidency of Baron D'Estournelles de Constant, French and German parliamentarians to the number of 215 met tonight with the object of improving Franco-German relations. A resolution was unanimously adopted repudiating "patriotic excitability" and demanding a decrease of armaments. The resolution continued:

"The conference warmly supports the proposal of the American secretary of state, Mr. Bryan, relating to arbitration treaties and demands that disputes between France and Germany shall be submitted to the Hague."

The fact that only thirty-three Germans were present, compared with 185 French deputies and senators, caused comment.

CALIFORNIA SOLONS HOLD SUNDAY SESSION

Sacramento, Cal., May 11.—The legislature, which continued an all-day Sunday session far into the night to prepare for adjournment tomorrow, passed a number of measures that now await only the governor's signature to become laws.

"A blue sky bill," providing for the examination of the books and property of every corporation which seeks to market its securities in California, was one of the most important.

Advertising Drives the Wheels of Trade

but it cannot keep them going unless properly supported. There is a type of man who thinks that when he puts an ad in the paper that is all he should do. He gives it no support. Then he wonders why customers do not crowd his store night and day.

He blames the lack of business on the paper and loses faith in the power of printer's ink. Yet he is at fault. The ad gets the people to his store, but what do they see?

Unkempt windows jammed full of goods so jumbled that the eye has no place to rest. If they enter they find unclean floors, listless and discourteous clerks, errors in change, vexing delays and other disappointments. Naturally they never return.

First impressions count. You must support your advertising. Not only with the goods, but with an inviting store in which can be felt a spirit of service. It must show in the arrangement of your goods, in the faces and clothes of your clerks, in their prompt and courteous attention to customers, and in a dozen other ways.

You may have only a small shop. But you can instill into it a personality that will be magnetic in its effect on all who enter. A spirit that shows from the smallest employee to the most important. Then people will return again and again.

The Constitution is with you in your endeavors to build a bigger business. But you must not put all the burden on your advertising. You must support it to the smallest detail.

Phone Main 5000 and a Representative Will Call

GEORGIANS WORKING FOR THIRD DISTRICT

Savannah Lawyers Insist That New Judge Should Come From That City.

(By John Corrigan, Jr.)

Washington, May 11.—(Special.)—Active steps have been taken by the members of the Georgia congressional delegation, following the recent conference with members of the Savannah bar, to secure a third judicial district and another United States district judge for the state.

Representative Adamson, of Georgia, is strongly in favor of having the new district made in southwest Georgia. Several years ago he introduced a bill putting forty counties in that section in a new circuit. The bill was supported by Representatives Griggs and Brantley, but never became a law. President McKinley was favorable to the project and would have signed the bill.

That another judge will not only expedite the handling of business, but create new business, was contended by the Savannah lawyers. In insisting that the new judge should be appointed from Savannah, they said much admiralty business now goes to Charleston and New York, which could more easily be handled in Savannah, if there was a federal judge at that port.

A suggestion made by representative Hardwick looks to dividing the [illegible] between north and south. This would put Atlanta in the western district, Macon in the central and Savannah in the eastern.

Many expressions from lawyers in all parts of the state have already been received in approval of the change and giving their views of how the division should be made.

Several members of the Georgia delegation have decided to run home for a few days' rest, now that the tariff bill is out of the house. Representative Edwards, of the first, has already gone; Representative Walker, of the eleventh, will leave tomorrow for Valdosta, and Representative Tribble, of the eighth, goes early in the week.

Judge A. L. Miller, of Macon, who has been selected by Secretary of State Bryan as arbitrator in the Guayaquil and Quito railroad tangle, is in Washington conferring with Mr. Bryan and Senator Bacon, chairman of the foreign relations committee. The date of his departure for Ecuador has not yet been settled. He says there is much work to be done here on the case first.

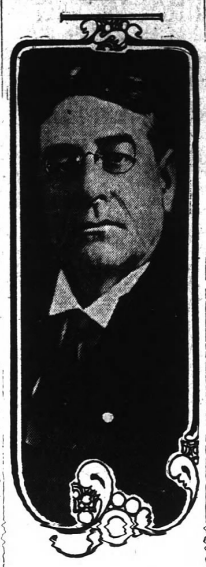
FRENCH AIRMAN FLIES ACROSS THE CHANNEL

London, May 11.—The French aviator, Marcel G. Brindejono des Moulinais, arrived at Hendon this afternoon, after a flight from Bremen. The aviator left Bremen at 3:10 o'clock Friday morning in a monoplane. He made a stop at Brussels and resumed his flight at 10:30 this morning. At Calais he took on a fresh supply of petrol and crossed the channel at great speed and at a high altitude.

Passing Dover and Canterbury he struck the Thames near Gravesend, and followed the river to London. He flew over the city at an altitude of 2,000 feet and arrived at Hendon at 3 p. m.

Flying over London is unlawful, but the aviator apparently was ignorant of this and probably the offense will be overlooked. People in the streets could plainly see the airship overhead. The passage across the channel occupied twenty minutes, which is a new record.

Stared Brotherhood



Dr. R. K. Bigger.

Pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church, of Cleveland, Ohio, and originator of the Presbyterian brotherhood. He is a lecturer of note, and will address the evangelistic conference in Atlanta May 14, and also the brotherhood conference on the evening of May 20.

FEDERATION OF ARTS MEETS IN WASHINGTON

Washington, May 11.—The American Federation of Arts will assemble here May 15 and 16 for its fourth annual convention.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the president, herself an artist, will entertain the delegates at a garden party at the white house on May 16. Both the president and Mrs. Wilson are enthusiastic supporters of the federation.

Leaders in the movement to increase a better knowledge concerning art will take part in the convention. One or more delegates from each of the 170 chapters of the federation are expected to attend. Two of the general topics to be discussed will be art museums and industrial art.

CENTRAL TRAIN WRECK; PASSENGERS UNINJURED

Columbus, Ga., May 11.—(Special.)—The Central of Georgia passenger train due here at 4:15 o'clock this afternoon from Macon, was wrecked three miles east of Columbus while traveling at an average speed. The engine and all of the cars were derailed, but none was turned over. The cause of the derailment has not been ascertained.

A few passengers were slightly bruised, but nobody was seriously hurt. Passengers were transferred at that point. The track will be cleared by morning.

ALL PECUNIARY CLAIMS ARE TO BE ARBITRATED

United States and Great Britain Will Begin to Clean Diplomatic Slate This Week.

Washington, May 11.—Great Britain and the United States will begin to clean the diplomatic slate Tuesday when the international tribunal for the arbitration of outstanding pecuniary claims between the two nations will hold its first meeting here under the presidency of Henri A. Fromageet, of France.

This tribunal, created by a special agreement negotiated by former Ambassador James Bryce and former Secretary of State P. C. Knox, in 1910, will judicially settle claims of private persons of the two nations, some of them dating back to the war of 1812.

There has been no judicial settlement of any such claim since 1853. The settlement of the large number of accumulated cases will relieve the American state department and the British foreign office of the necessity of presenting the demands which each is constantly being urged to press upon the other in behalf of its nationals. The claims listed for hearin at the opening session of the tribunal are chiefly those in favor of, or against, Canada. They relate to seizure of American fishing vessels and Canadian sealers, collisions, contracts in the Yukon territory, South Africa and India, and other subjects.

The tribunal consists of, besides President Fromageet, the two national arbitrators, Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, chief justice of Canada, and Chandler P. Anderson, assistant solicitor of the department of state. The two governments are represented by C. J. B. Hurst, agent for Great Britain, and Robert Lansing, agent for the United States. The claims will be argued on behalf of the United States by J. Reuben Clark, jr., former solicitor of the state department; Arthur P. Mollntry, H. H. D. Pierce and Charles F. Wilson, and on behalf of Great Britain by E. L. Newcomb, Canadian deputy minister of justice, and other British counsel. The joint secretaries of the tribunal are Robert A. Young, for the United States, and A. C. Kerr, of the British embassy.

By the special agreement of 1910 which created the tribunal, all claims to be heard must be included in schedules to which both governments consent. In this, it differs from the customary agreement as to the arbitration of claims, which permits any outstanding claim to be submitted to the arbitrators. In June, 1911, the two governments agreed upon a first schedule, containing some three hundred claims. But in addition to those in the first schedule there are a large number of other claims which each government desires to have settled so that negotiations are in progress for a second schedule. If no agreement on this can be reached there will be practically no outstanding claims between the two governments and a constant source of diplomatic discussion and annoyance will finally be removed. The American claims aggregate $4,330,000; the British, $2,966,000.

AMERICAN DELEGATES GREETED BY ROYALTY

Rome, May 11.—King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena are taking a deep interest in the visit of the American commission which is to study in Rome and other European capitals the question of agricultural co-operation and farmers' credits. The sovereigns and many members of the diplomatic corps went to the International Institute of Agriculture today to meet the American delegates who had just arrived from Naples.

Marquis Rafaelo Cappelli, president of the institute, in an address, said that one of the most significant results achieved by the institute was the sending of an official commission from the United States to Rome.

After the minister of agriculture, Signor Nitti, had welcomed the delegates, Representative E. W. Moss, chairman of the commission, said:

"We have come from the new world to the old world in search of useful information. Our nation is paying the tribute of respect which youth with perfect propriety can always accord to age.

"Even in our distant country we have heard of your majesty's deep and abiding interest in agriculture and in the International Institute of Agriculture, made possible by your generosity. Therefore, it seems fitting that this commission should begin its official labor here durling the session of the institute."

Joseph N. Francolini, of New York, who was presented to the king as "one of Italy's sons adopted by America," handed to his majesty a set of resolutions which the American commission had prepared. All the delegates and the ladies of the party were presented to the sovereigns.

RISING TEMPERATURES FOR PRESENT WEEK

Washington, May 11.—Unseasonably high temperatures are not expected to prevail during the coming week over any portion of the country, according to the weekly weather bureau bulletin issued today. "Temperatures will rise on Monday, however," the bulletin said, "over the eastern half of the country and also on Tuesday from the lake region and Ohio valley eastward, but probably to only about normal conditions. In the plateau region and the extreme northwest it will be cooler by Monday night, with frost in the latter section and by the middle of the week it will be cooler in the plains states, the upper Mississippi valley and the upper lake region. In the south normal temperatures will prevail.

"No precipitation of consequence is indicated over the eastern portion of the country. Showers will occur early in the week over the northwest and central west and probably by the middle of the week in the central valleys and the greater portion of the lake region, followed by generally fair weather during the second half of the week. In the South Atlantic and east gulf states there will be local thunderstorms during the first half of the week, followed by generally fair weather during the latter half. In the west gulf states generally fair weather is indicated."

TWO BIRDMEN TO FLY KEY WEST TO HAVANA

Key West, Fla., May 11.—Augustine Parla, the aviator, will enter the contest for the $10,000 prize offered by the city of Havana, Cuba, for the first successful flight from Key West to that place. Parla will drive a biplane, which is already here. Domingo Rosilli, the other contestant, expects to have his machine repaired tomorrow, and both airmen will probably attempt the flight Tuesday. There is a second prize of $5,000.

Quick Thinking Wins

Is your thinker fed right for prompt action?

At a dinner not long ago Thomas W. Lawson was talking on the subject of success.

"Success in finance," said Mr. Lawson, "is due in a great measure to prompt action. The doubting, hesitating, Hamlet type of man had best keep out of finance. He is quite sure to be swamped."

Keen Brains Count

Keep on with your "bacon and soggy pancake breakfast" if you choose, and stay in the Hamlet class, but if you really want to get ahead, just begin to live right.

A good start is to cut out the heavy, indigestible breakfast and have a dish of

Grape-Nuts

and Cream

Analysis shows that Albumen, Water and Phosphate of Potash are the three principal essentials for building up one's thinking outfit—the Brain. You get the first two in everyday food, but the third, the vital organic Phosphate of Potash, is often lacking.

Grape-Nuts Food made of whole wheat and malted barley is rich in this vital, brain-building element.

A good, healthy working brain can be built up on right food. That's why Tens of Thousands of get-ahead Americans eat their regular morning dish of this distinctively American food.

One Hundred of the Charmingest of Silk Dresses in a Sale

The greater part of them are just out of their boxes, as fresh and bright and attractive in as many different ways as there are dresses.

They come from a maker who has a right to be proud of his work—his styles seem to have more and smarter little individual touches than the usual—and without any added premiums to his prices.

But the prices—these are—

$21.75, $25 and $29.75 Dresses

At $13.85

And dresses this maker intends for selling at $21.75, $25 and $29.75 leave little to be wanted!

Too many styles to start describing any one or few—but know that you may choose from crepe meteor, crepe de chine, charmeuse, foulard, poplin (silk) and you may have any color you may like—navy, Copenhagen, wistaria, rose, Nell rose, gray, tan and black.

There are styles you will like for mornings, for street, for little afternoon affair.

And we warrant you will change your opinion as to how pretty a dress can be bought for $13.85.

In the Hey-Day of Their Popularity

A Sale of Crepe de Chine and Shadow Lace Waists

No need of telling women how good White Crepe de Chine Waists and Shadow Lace Waists are right now.

They who have searched for them know that they are good, and in most stores scarce.

Our waist buyer is just back from New York where he captured a most likable lot of these—and at a price.

The selling begins this morning!

Some of the styles you have seen here before and have chosen very eagerly at regular prices now!

$5.75 to $6.50 Crepe de Chine Waists

At $4.75

Take time, please, to feel and judge the quality of the Crepe de Chine.

That weight and that softness are a guarantee that it is all pure silk, the kind that washes without hurt.

There are possibly a dozen styles!

All white—often touched with a colored bow or a colored thread worked around the edges of the collar and cuffs.

Some show embroidered collars, pocket and front panel. The picturesque Byron collar is prominent—the low turn-back collar—these usually on the rather plain shirt.

Among them certainly a style you will like.

$6.50 Shadow Lace Waists

At $4.95

Allover Cream Shadow Lace.

One particularly attractive model has a wide band, some 4 inches wide, of colored chiffon just above the waist line, that is veiled and softened by the shadow lace; the chiffon also shows in little bows on the sleeve and at the neck. It may be rose, pink or shades of blue. Another dainty model is very frilly and lacy. The low surplice neck is frilled, the sleeves are frilled. It has rows of tucks down the front.

Odd that such waists should be so underpriced right now.

Those most eager to own them should be here soon after store-opening time.

Sheer and Exquisite Dress Fabrics—Priced

These are the fabrics that women want for their summer dresses—for street, for afternoon, for evening wear.

There are voiles so light and airy that it hardly seems possible that they were woven, and yet across these surfaces are dots and spots and great colorful floral patterns.

You will exclaim over them!

And here they are in a sale!

Priced at the very time their appeal is strongest—priced very vigorously.

If there is any way of judging what will attract eager buyers, we record the prediction that there will be a crowd for these!

At 49c French Crepes that were 75c and $1.00 a yard. A fabric in high favor. 32 inches wide. White ground with dots over it in colors—many colors.

At 49c French Piques that were 60c and 85c a yard. 32 inches wide. Plain white and with embroidered dots. Splendid for dresses and skirts.

At 59c French Voiles that were 85c a yard. 48 inches wide. White with a border made up of silk stripes in blue, lavender and pink.

At 89c French Voiles and Crepes that were $1.50 a yard. 38 and 40 inches wide. White, blue, lavender and black grounds embroidered with colored dots.

At 89c Voiles that were $1.50 a yard. Among these are white voiles, 45 inches wide, showing a border of embroidered designs in colors, and 40-inch voiles, as dainty as can be, in lavender, pink and light blue, embroidered over in self-colored dots.

At 98c Voiles that were $1.50, $2.00, $2.25 and $2.50 a yard. There will be many dresses chosen from among these. The pricing is remarkable, the variety is great—checked voiles, striped voiles in black and white, great floral patterns in rich colors on white grounds—and with these an odd few French crepes that, too, were priced from $1.50 to $2.50 a yard. All 38 inches wide.

WHITEHALL STREET.

The proposal to remove the "hump," fill the hollow, and to make other radical changes in the profile of Whitehall street, contemplates undoubtedly the farthest-reaching city improvement ever inaugurated on the southern side of Atlanta. Whitehall is the great natural channel for traffic on the south side to and from the center of the city. It is the southern half of the central route from the southern to the northern boundaries of the city, and the enormous tide of rural traffic beyond the boundaries. Whether or not the projected improvements are made, the south side will, of course, continue to expand. But its development will not even approximately approach the rate of growth that will follow if the improvements were authorized. The plans now in contemplation have, therefore, a definite bearing on the entire future of the south side.

Few thoroughfares in the city, in the south, for that matter, are so uniquely adapted as is Whitehall to the creation of a great commercial district. It possesses the first requisite in its direct access to the heart of the city. For almost a mile of its length, lots fronting on this main thoroughfare back on two of the most important railroad systems entering Atlanta—the Southern railway and the Central of Georgia. Thus there are afforded ideal facilities for stores, factories and warehouses.

As the matter now stands, this phase of the street's development is arrested by almost prohibitive grades and contours for much of its length. These obstacles can be removed by the proposed change of grade.

The street committee has already done its part. It remains now to be seen if the finance committee and council itself will give the south side the great impetus to which it is obviously entitled.

Ninety-five per cent. of the property-owners have petitioned for the change. The other 5 per cent. should not be allowed to thwart or delay so fundamental an improvement. The city could well afford to pay the few protesting owners such reasonable damages as may be awarded.

A HISTORIC REMINDER.

Historic light is shed on California's revival of the issue of state rights by Captain John A. Cobb, a Confederate veteran and ordinary of Sumter county and son of Howell Cobb, the great Georgian who figured so decisively in those events of the sixties, when the question of state rights was settled, once and for all, by the tribunal of war. The father was a powerful advocate of state rights to the point of secession. That issue made him a leading figure in the politics of the state and nation before and after secession. Now, at the expiration of forty-eight years, the son declares, in a statement furnished the Americus Times-Recorder and reproduced elsewhere in The Constitution, that Appomattox settled the question and that California is now assuming a position for which the south had to undergo the drastic discipline of the civil war.

It is interesting to watch the turn of the wheel of time. Fifty years ago California's attitude on the race question was far different from its position of today. Then she saw no wrong in thrusting upon the south an "alien" race, not in the mere holding of a few acres of land, but with full rights of citizenship to millions of ex-slaves, utterly unprepared for the ballot.

It would be interesting to know how Howell Cobb would characterize this ironic inconsistency were he today alive, and how he would view an attempt to revive the adjudicated issue of state rights to the embarrassment of the entire nation.

TAG DAY.

Surrender quickly and generously today to the attacks of the taggers. They will be abroad through the city as the representatives of the Sheltering Arms, one of the worthiest and most practical philanthropies of the city.

Only once a year does the Sheltering Arms make an appeal to the people of Atlanta and then through the medium of the tags. From the proceeds of sales they depend on upkeep for the year, supplementing sums from this source with money they raise from private sources. The day nursery and kindergarten and other features of their work are among the most helpful features of Atlanta's charitable endeavors.

The sum you invest today for one of the little tags is money well spent. The expansion of the institution's activity in response to the city's growth makes liberal contributions imperative.

FOR INDUSTRIAL ATLANTA.

Among the most important movements yet made toward the development of Atlanta is contained in the report of a committee of the chamber of commerce looking toward the establishment of an industrial bureau by that organization. Some time ago President Moore appointed a committee to investigate the feasibility of the project. Now that it has been reported favorably, he will name another committee to suggest a plan and details for the organizing of the bureau.

One of the causes of lost motion in the progress of the city has heretofore been the absence of a bureau of this nature. The city has attracted a great many manufacturing enterprises, it is true, but those in a position to know are convinced that it has also overlooked a great many opportunities because it was not equipped to go out after them in a scientific manner. Throughout the south today commercial bodies realize the importance of industrial bureaus, in securing large and small projects and annually spend large sums upon their maintenance.

Atlanta should be the leading manufacturing city of the south and one of the foremost ones in the nation. We have here, without an exception, all the qualities required by a great manufacturing center. Our location is unsurpassed. We command raw material of such volume and range as would support almost every class of industries. Transportation facilities are excellent and improving. Power, whether from electrically or coal-derived sources, is almost limitless. We are within easy striking distance of deep-water facilities, whether looking toward the Panama canal and its tremendous fields or the ports of the old world.

The fortunes and the cities that will, tomorrow, make the south internationally notable will both find their growths in the expansion of manufacturing. Agriculture in its scientific and intensified phases will of course be an important factor, but manufacturing industries will be the determining factor in greatness, considered from the standpoint of volume of export trade. Even now there are indications that other southern cities appreciate the principle and are engaged actively in campaigning for manufacturing enterprises. The sooner Atlanta gets in the game with a well-equipped organization the better.

CONGOS---HOME AND ABROAD.

The general mission board of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, in session at Dallas, has just decided to send three missionaries to the Congo, in Africa. Already $21,000 has been subscribed toward their expenses, and it is promised that more will be forthcoming.

The enterprise is an excellent one. Revelations of conditions in the Congo, following exposure of the atrocities practiced under Leopold of Belgium, indicate an appealing field for missionary labor.

But—what about the Congos of the southern states? We make the statement advisedly—there are conditions more appalling, need more clamorous in the Congos of the south than in Africa's darkest Congo. It is needless to tear one's self from home and people or to go into voluntary exile in a distant land to reach our own Congos. Many of them are almost within earshot of the hall in Dallas where sat the mission board. They abound in every southern state. They are almost within the shadow of the steeples of our many Methodist churches.

Here are hundreds of thousands of negroes immoral, insanitary, lawless, ignorant—barbarians, jostling our white population every day. They need the grace of God at least as much as their crude brethren in the Congo jungle. Here is a black man's civilization overlapping our own civilization, threatening it with disease, paralyzing it because of inefficiency, preying upon it with crime, steadily going downward as experts with candor will testify.

Are missionaries being equipped to deal with this chaotic mass? Are consecrated men and women sacrificing comfort and daring ridicule and misunderstanding to uplift these Congos that are imbedded like thorns in our own flesh and that are slowly festering there? This particular board is also appropriating $59,360 for work in China; $80,330 for Japan; $31,432 for Korea; $153,717 for Mexico; $7,000 for Cuba. How much for the half-heathen with whom we rub shoulders daily? Not a penny is reported.

The Constitution does not disparage foreign missions. The churches are simply obeying the divine mandate to take the gospel into all lands. But—the appeal to imagination which lies in distance makes the woes and needs of China and India and Africa seem so much more real than our own woes. Is not a more accurate interpretation of the spirit of missionary work the expenditure upon the heathen at home of at least one dollar for every dollar that goes to Christianize the heathen over the seas?

A Story of the Moment

By WALT MASON
The Famous Prose Poet

Riding a Hobby

"I'm afraid the new grocer, Mr. Singletree, isn't doing much business," remarked the school superintendent. "It's rather surprising, too, for he appears to be an agreeable man, and he certainly has a fine store."

"The new grocer is a fine man, without a doubt," agreed the village patriarch, "and he's probably loaded down with redeeming qualities, but he is more or less dippy on the subject of horse racing. He knows the record of every pacer that ever trotted, loped or pawed a mile in less than a quarter of an hour, and he wants to talk about such things all the time. The people who are interested in racehorses are comparatively few, and such people go to a livery stable when they want to hold a conference. This Mr. Singletree uses no discrimination. He doesn't select his victims with proper care. He talks racehorses to the preacher, to the mother of a family, to babes and sucklings, to everybody who enters his store. People who have no interest in horses at all always are looking for excuses to transfer their trade to some other store, so the grocer who has such a foolish hobby can't expect to hold them.

"The man who is in business can't afford to have a hobby, however innocent it may be. He may have deep seated convictions touching the groundhog or the signs of the zodiac, but if he is wise he will keep them in his bosom; for if he makes a practice of airing them he will weary his customers and probably make them sore, so they'll quit patronizing him, and refuse to pay their bills. A grocer has firm faith in the groundhog as a weather prophet, let us say. He broods over the matter until he comes to the conclusion that the groundhog is the only issue of consequence in this country. He wants to do missionary work, and he talks groundhog to everybody who enters his store. His customers naturally come to the conclusion that he should be in the violent ward at booby headquarters, for the groundhog doesn't appeal to them. The few customers who are interested in the groundhog hold opposite views and they get mad at the infatuated grocer for championing the beast. So the unfortunate merchant finds himself shunned by all his fellow citizens and finally his profits cease and he goes to the woods and crawls into a groundhog's hole and dies.

"When I was first in the feed business I was young and giddy and deeply interested in politics. I felt sure that the grand old party of Rutherford B. Hayes and Charles J. Guiteau was the only hope of the country, and I never missed an opportunity to explain my views. When I bought the store I fell heir to a big trade, and soon I found I was losing the best part of it. So I went into executive session and concluded that I had the disease which afflicted the historic parrot—I talked too much. I had offended several grand old wheelhorses of the democratic party who always paid cash for the hay and shorts, by wielding my jaw too violently. I had offended several wealthy republicans also, because my views were too radical. I had offended an opulent widow who had always patronized the store, by pointing the finger of scorn at Belva Lockwood, who was then a living issue. I had caused general discontent and finally ruined my business by riding a political hobby when I should have been explaining the charms and graces of my baled hay.

"So I rebuked myself with great bitterness and decided to turn over a new leaf. From that day forth I had no political views for public display. I made it a point to agree with every man who came into the store talking politics, instead of arguing with him. I admitted that the country should have a high protective tariff, and that it should have a tariff at all; I agreed with one customer that women should have the right to vote, and with another that they should not. I indorsed the theories of the few greenbackers in town, and said soothing things to the chairman of the prohibition central committee, and applauded the facetiae of both democratic and republican wheelhorses.

"As a consequence of this wise and conservative policy, I soon had back all the trade I had lost, and many new customers, and in a few years I controlled the feed business of the town. And now, Mr. Storekeeper, let us have the checkerboard."

A Hot Mouthful.

(From The Walton News.)

W. A. Brooks, who resides above Monroe some 5 or 6 miles, was on last Thursday the victim of an unusual and very painful accident. He was endeavoring to hive some bees, two swarms, that had settled on his premises, and, while up on a scaffold making the attempt to swoop them into the hive, he happened to cough, and, as he did so, a bee went down this throat stinging him severely as he passed down, and for some time he was in most excruciating pain. In fact, his misery at times was almost enough to give him lockjaw. We are glad he has gotten over his trouble.

Moral--Have Something to Sell.

(From The Lavonia Times.)

A farmer living in Franklin county brought eighteen chickens to Lavonia last Saturday morning. They were not as big as your fist, and he carried back $7.20 for them, and they were sold for eating purposes. This high cost of living is helping some folks. It is mighty good on the fellow that has something to sell, but woe unto the fellow who buys.

When Some People Sing Best.

(From The Ellijay Times.)

Next Sunday is the singing convention. This occasion is to be one of pleasure and interest, but it has become such a gala day for those who indulge in drink that the interest is considerably retarded.

A Pessimist.

(From The Rochelle New Era.)

The supply stores are selling more feed stuff to farmers this year than they have ever sold before. This is to be regretted, but it is not likely any change will be made in our methods of farming with high-priced cotton. Times are already hard, but we might as well look for worse.

An Expert Opinion.

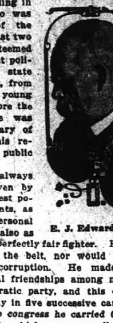
New News of Yesterday

When the Man Was Greater Than the Office

By E. J. Edwards.

(Copyright, 1913, for The Constitution.)



E. J. Edwards.

The late Nehemiah D. Sperry, who represented the New Haven, Conn., district in the house of representatives at Washington for five terms, ending in 1905, and who was the father of the house in the last two terms, was esteemed the most adroit politician in the state of Connecticut, from the time, as a young man, just before the civil war, he was elected secretary of state, until his retirement from public life in 1905.

He was always spoken of, even by his most earnest political opponents, as a man of personal integrity and also as a politician, a perfectly fair fighter. He never struck below the belt, nor would he ever countenance corruption. He made many warm personal friendships among members of the democratic party, and this explains the reason why in five successive campaigns for election to congress he carried the New Haven district, which was normally democratic, by very large majorities.

I was chatting with Mr. Sperry a few weeks before the presidential campaign of 1884, a canvass in which he was extremely interested. Something in the course of our conversation brought up the name of James B. English.

"I never think of Governor English," said Mr. Sperry, "without recalling the real personal sadness I felt in 1871 because, by reason of what I did, he was deprived of reelection as governor of Connecticut.

"This sadness was due wholly to my profound admiration of the noble and honorable manner in which Governor English had acted at the time of this contested election.

"English had already served as governor, having defeated Joseph R. Hawley in 1867. Earlier he was a member of congress in the New Haven district. He was a stanch democrat and knew why he was a democrat, yet he voted for the legislation by congress which exterminated slavery in the District of Columbia. I remember that at the time of the assassination of President Lincoln English presided at a mass meeting at New Haven and was so visibly affected that the tears ran down his cheeks and he completely broke down as he tried to address the meeting.

"He was some years afterward a member of the United States senate for a brief term.

"The result of the gubernatorial election of 1871 was very close. On the face of the returns English was elected by a plurality of less than a hundred. When the legislature met strongly supported charges of fraud in the fourth ward of New Haven were made. Governor English at once stated that he could not take the oath of office or enter upon his duties until it was made clear that he was lawfully entitled to every vote reported in the official count. That in itself was an act showing nobility of character. I felt at the time that my state would be honored if a man of Governor English's character were found to have been lawfully chosen governor, although we differed strongly upon political questions. I had several conversations with Governor English, and I told him that there were the best of reasons for believing that something like 200 votes in the fourth ward of New Haven were counted for him when they were really cast for Marshall Jewell.

"Governor English instantly said that he would advise his democratic friends to unite with the republicans in making a thorough investigation of these charges. I told him that I believed the only way in which facts could be easily established would be by summoning every person who voted in the fourth ward and getting in that way a statement under oath of how each voter voted.

"Governor English agreed with me. He offered to give me every assistance needed to reach all the voters, some of whom had gone away from New Haven shortly after the election. He said that he would not enter upon the office of governor unless his title to it were established beyond any doubt.

"We did summon every man who voted in the fourth ward. We got his testimony under oath. The result showed that fraud had been committed. With the vote of the fourth ward properly counted, Marshall Jewell received a plurality of a little less than a hundred.

"Governor English said to me afterward that it was of more consequence a thousand times over that right should prevail than that he should serve as governor or that his party should be triumphant.

"I had a prominent part in the investigation proceedings, and it was with real sorrow that I found it necessary to say to Governor English, 'You are less than a hundred votes behind the lawful vote cast for Marshall Jewell.' My sorrow was occasioned by my admiration for the spirit with which Governor English faced this crisis."

ALONE

By George Matthew Adams

Learn to Be Alone.

To be Healthily Alone is to be Morally afire. In such Solitude are the Ideas of Centuries hatched. Big minds Think, Decide, Stand—conquer, while Alone. They self-examine and self-construct.

Learn to Think Alone.

Lincoln was Alone with his pine knots and borrowed books; Hugo was Alone with his mean garret and pen; Cromwell was Alone at St. Ives behind his plow handle. Wherever great problems or vital decisions have had to be met, men have calmly withdrawn that they might the better weigh everything.

Learn to Decide Alone.

Emerson says—"Trust thyself; every heart vibrates to that iron string." Can a man trust himself away from himself? Is not the vital test and final greatness of a man all focused on his ability to stand absolutely Alone in emergencies? Props irritate and unnerve. So do irresponsive natures. The Crowd eats away independence. Real Worth tops like a mountain cap. Nobody can mistake it. Like the mountain itself it stands alone. No one will ever do for you what you are able to do for yourself—Alone.

Learn to Stand Alone.

If you have personal problems to solve—get Alone. If you are dissatisfied with what you are—get Alone. You will look strangely true to yourself when examined Alone. Nothing stimulates like getting Alone—so long as you get Alone to improve yourself.

Learn to Conquer Alone.

The World's Mysteries

MYSTERIES of ROYALTY

WHERE WAS ANNE BOLEYN BURIED?

Where was Anne Boleyn buried? This question has brought out no end of argument for several centuries in England. Everyone is familiar with the picturesque scenes in the tower when Henry VIII. executed his second wife. How the queen nerved herself to go through the awful scene. "Never," says an eyewitness of the tragedy, "had the queen looked so beautiful before." She was attended by four maids of honor, including Mary Wyatt. One of her ladies covered her eyes with a bandage. And thus, and without more to say or do, was her head struck off; she making no confession of her fault, but saying, "O, Lord God, have pity on my soul!"

The mangled remains of the hapless Anne, having been covered with a sheet by the attendant ladies, were placed by them in an elm chest, which had been used for storing arrows; they were conveyed to the church within the Tower, and hastily buried within the trench beside the coffins of her brother and friends. No funeral rites were performed over the grave, except doubtless, a hurried prayer whispered by the trembling lips of gentle Mary Wyatt.

During the following night, according to a tradition now for three centuries uncontradicted, the old elm chest was secretly conveyed to Salle church, in Norfolk, where it was committed to consecrated ground. A marble slab, devoid of inscription or date, is pointed out to this day as the funeral monument of Anne Boleyn.

Are these facts true, and do the remains of Anne Boleyn rest in Salla church, the ancient burial place of the Boleyns? The black marble slab underneath which the body is supposed to be buried, is nearly opposite to the pulpit. Some years ago, it is said, the slab was removed and the grave examined, but nothing could be discovered of the body of the queen, but instead, a skeleton was found with the head attached to the corpse.

Agnes Strickland, author of the famous book, "The Queens of England," mentions that there exists another tradition which points out the resting place of the queen's remains to be in the ancient church of Thorndon, on the hill in Essex, and that in this church a marble monument is pointed out by the village antiquaries as the veritable monument kindly sent by Lady Petre, who remarked "that the monument has rather the appearance of a shrine which has been broken open. It may have contained her heart or her head, for it is too short to contain a body; and, indeed, it seems to be of an older date than the sixteenth century. The oldest people in the neighborhood all declare that they have heard the tradition in their youth from a previous generation of aged people, who all affirm it to be Anne Boleyn's monument."

Lord Herbert of Cherbury, in his "History of King Henry VIII.," does not state how or where Anne Boleyn was buried. Hollingshead, Stow and Speed, as well as other historians, say that her body, with the head, was buried in the choir of the chapel in the Tower, and Sanford says that she was buried in the chapel of St. Peter in the Tower.

Another historian, writing several centuries after her death, says "But the headless remains of the departed queen were said to be deposited in an obscure grave, behind the Tower chapel before the high altar. Where that stood the most sagacious antiquary, after a lapse of less than three hundred years, cannot now determine; nor is the circumstance, as long remained current writers, clearly certain. In a cellar the body of a person of short stature, without a head, not many years since was found, and supposed to be the remains of poor Anne, but soon after reinterred in the same place and covered with earth."

It would appear, therefore, that the ill-fated queen was first buried at some place in the Tower, but that her remains did not rest there for any great period. The following passage would hardly have been written by Queen Mary Wyatt, in her pathetic account of the queen's death, had not her remains been honored by other ceremonies than those which immediately followed her execution: "God," he says, "provided for her corpse's sacred burial, even in a place, as it were, consecrated to innocence." But where that place was found no one seems to know.

STATE RIGHTS EXPOUNDED BY HOWELL COBB'S SON

An interesting contribution to the California-Japan controversy is that of Captain John A. Cobb, of Americus, a confederate veteran and son of Howell Cobb, the great Georgian, who was one of the staunchest advocates of state rights when that issue provoked the civil war.

Captain Cobb publishes an article in a recent edition of The Americus Times-Recorder, in which he declares that Appomattox settled permanently the power of state over nation, and in which by inference he rebukes California.

Part of the Nation.

Captain Cobb's article is, in part, as follows:

We of the south treasure in our hearts the proud memories of the past, but have fully realized that forty-eight years ago, when we again became an integral part of the American union—not by choice, but as the result of an armed conflict with the general government, what our condition was, and we have stood by our parents then granted to us, and have true and loyal citizens to our great government.

Recently that great and wise ruler of the future of this country, Hon. William H. Taft, was pleased to compliment us by referring to the consecration of the south, and the influence it would have in the future of this country. It may seem impertinent to some of our brethren "over the border" for us to do so, but we of the south do earnestly call on you to recognize the true condition of things, and to give your unrestricted loyalty to your great government, and to cease to "kick against the pricks."

It may not be pleasant to do so, but the time has come when we all know that we are a part of a great nation and must christians are sure to take care of local affairs, not in conflict with the general government. This is what the people of the north fought for, but they do not seem to realize it. Perhaps in time they are receiving.

President Wilson and Secretary Bryan, through the kindness of their big hearts, tried to let the legislature of California down easy, but like bad boys at school they do not seem disposed to obey the orders, unless by severe coercion, which is bound to come in some form, not so pleasant of acceptance.

Take the history of this country prior to 1861 and most of the achievements that gave glory to the flag were done by southern men. The greatly added glory made from 1861 to 1865, we made up to do it. Then the Spanish-American war came on, where did the men come from, and who did more and is going added glory to the flag? Are we of the south claiming too much when we say this is our flag and can say truthfully and loyally we are proud of it, and it gives us the right at this time to say to our brethren of the north, "Rally, boys; rally—rally to the flag of the union!"

"Fast united, we shall stand,
Rallying around our Liberty
As a band of brothers joined in Peace and safety we shall find."

WASTE

By GEORGE FITCH
Author of "At Good Old Siwash"

(Copyright, 1913, for The Constitution.)

Waste is a surplus of anything which can't be used profitably.

The world is full of waste in many forms. Waste money is one of our most serious troubles. After a man has spent all the money he can sensibly and still has more, he often puts it down his throat to get rid of it, with terrible results.

Food is so plentiful in the United States that we are very wasteful in its use. After an American family has finished a dinner, a French family can live high off the remains. The garbage barrel is the best fed institution in the country.

Time is scandalously wasted. Many a man wastes so much time in business that he hasn't any left in which to make himself worth talking to or to insure his being buried with regret.

Government is full of waste. Our cities usually elect two or three aldermen with brains and a lot more for which it cannot find the slightest use. However, no city is wasted by its aldermen. They get everything they can out of it.

Religion is extremely wasteful. Many a small town supports five ministers' families on hope and potatoes and keeps up five churches with five bells, whereas one bell would make enough disturbance to call the people to one church, which could be presided over by one minister with a well-fed appearance and no doubts.

There is an appalling waste of conversation in the world. Three-quarters of the conversation could be abolished and the output of thought would still be the same. The man who wastes a half hour each for 1,000 American citizens by loading up a few burning thoughts with frazzled adjectives

ALLEGED ASSAILANT CAUGHT IN LAURENS

Mobs Chased Negro Reported to Have Attempted to Assault a White Woman.

Dublin, Ga. May 11.—(Special.)—Reports of an attempted assault on a white woman by a negro named Delaware Powell in Wheeler county Saturday night reached here today, and it was also reported that the negro had been lynched. This latter report is untrue, as the negro was put in jail by Sheriff Nat Miller, where he was this afternoon. It is now claimed by the sheriff that there is very little in the charge, and that it may prove to be nothing after all.

Powell is said to have committed the crime during Saturday afternoon, and soon after the alarm had been given the sheriff gave chase, using the bloodhounds of Wheeler county and borrowing those of Laurens county. The negro was run several miles, and finally crossed the line into Laurens county and was captured in a negro house, in what is known as Jordan's quarter. The entire country was filled with men searching for the negro, and the hunt was swift and fierce from the first.

Several persons went down from Dublin, including City Court Sheriff D. M. Grier. In the confusion of the telephone message received from there the impression was given that relatives of Mr. Grier were concerned in the trouble, and this caused him and several others to go to the scene at once. However, this proved to be untrue, and none of his family was connected with the trouble in any way.

DR. PROCTOR PREACHES SERMON ON "MOTHER"

"Mother the Uncrowned Queen of the World; the Home Her Throne, the World her Realm, her Children her Jewels," was the subject of the "Mother's Day" sermon by Rev. H. H. Proctor at the First Congregational church, colored, last night.

After discussing this subject in its various phases, Dr. Proctor concluded his discourse by giving his subject a practical application, as follows: "Whether your mother be with you still or gone on before, you can honor her by cultivating the mother spirit toward all womankind. Throughout our land today there is a great revival of the mother spirit. Men and women are devising plans to protect the working girl. Even Ruth went to glean in the fields of Bethlehem it was the hour of her peril. Boaz played the hero, and bade her stay close by his maidens. The safety of the working girl today lies in having a cordon of good women thrown around her. On yon hill they are opening a home for the protection of the white working girl. That is good, and I am glad that hard by this church you have opened a home for the protection of the colored working girl, where for fifteen cents a day you give her all the facilities of a modern home."

LEANDER B. HUTCHESON DIES FROM APOPLEXY

Following an attack of apoplexy which occurred three days ago, Leander B. Hutcheson, aged 67, of 145 Summitt avenue, died last night at a local hospital where he had been taken in the hope of saving his life.

Mr. Hutcheson's body was taken to Greenberg & Bond's chapel and funeral arrangements will be announced later.

During the many years of his life in Atlanta, Mr. Hutcheson, who was a prominent Odd Fellow, had made hundreds of friends here, to whom news of his death will come as a decided shock.

He is survived by his wife and the following children: Fred H. and Carl Hutcheson, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Thomas Buck, of Chattanooga.

GIDEONS ENTHUSIASTIC OVER CAMP IN ATHENS

Local members of the Gideons, or Christian commercal travelers, are enthusastic today over the organization in Athens Sunday of a camp of Gideons with twelve charter members.

The newly organized camp chose as its principal officers, F. C. Thornton, president; Sam E. Woods, secretary; H. J. Hancock, treasurer, and G. W. Burney, chaplain. The men who went from Atlanta to form the new camp are A. F. Todd, tsatte president; C. W. Hatcher, chairman of the trustees, and C. H. Burge, president of the Atlanta camp.

White Flowers in Buttonholes Show Atlanta's Love for Mother

Among the crowds that strolled down-town Sunday morning was a man who came out of a hotel entrance. Quick steps and a certain manner of energy bespoke his ability and success, but despite his prosperous appearance there was something harsh in his expression. Life with him had degenerated into a scramble for the almighty dollar. Someone brushed against him as his feet touched the sidewalk, and vexation showed plainly on his features. He looked back to give the other fellow a frown, and caught a glimpse of a white flower.

His forehead wrinkled for a moment, as if deep back in his brain a subconscious thought was striving to reach the outer surface. Then it came.

"Mother's Day," he exclaimed.

Words Have Magic Effect.

Hismanner of saying the words could only be called an exclamation, but in them there was something tender, something almost holy, and they seemed to work a magic charm on his features.

The hard lines melted away as though his mother's hand had smoothed away the pain as she used to do when as a lad some petty trouble seemed big enough to break his heart.

Back to boyhood days his thoughts flew. But this time there were no memories of a little maid in calico dress, no recollections of days when he and the fellows stole off from school and went headforemost into the old swimmig hole.

It was just the picture of a tender face he seemed to conjure up with the words, "Mother's Day." The face was wrinkled and bore lines of suffering and of trouble, but around it there was a halo of dark hair, just turning gray around the edges, and from the eyes that lighted up the countenance something seemed to leap forth to him and to warm his hardened heart and melt away the lines of toil and perhaps dissipation.

Those mother's eyes, as reflected in the man's face, could only have been painted by some Raphael and then with divine suildance. A wonderful love shone in the man's eyes, and it was but a reflection of the most wonderful thing in the world—the mother's love that had sprung into life when he was merely a little tot, just opening his eyes upon a strange world and learning to look to mother for protection and comfort.

The man glanced down at hisscoat lapel and then sought a white flower. He pinned on a rose and went his way. Half a minute later he was lost in the mass of strangers who throng Five Points.

All Honor Mother.

He was gone! no one knew where and few thought about him again, for it chanced that he was a stranger here, a traveling man spending Sunday in Atlanta. But to those who watched him unconsciously show his tender flood of thoughts at the sight of the white flower on another stranger's coat, there came back something of the sweetness and goodness much of mother-hearts the world over and not a man who saw but took on a kindlier and tenderer look.

So it was wherever men and women gathered on Sunday, the day set apart to do honor to the mother living, and to pay respects to the mother departed. The grinding rush of business that seems to wear of the finer susceptibilities, and the fierce heat of competition that appears to dry the softer forces of nature, were forgotten and all Atlanta took on something of the tenderness and reverent thoughts of the days when little the Cupid's bow on their lips bespoke gentle words to come from their mouths and kind deeds from their actions.

The day sacred to mother, the sweetest woman on earth, was generally observed in Atlanta Sunday. Pastors spoke of it in their pulpits and took occasion to dwell on the sacredness of home and the duty of children to their parents, and in many a heart where the longing for mother's kindness and affection had never died out there arose an altar to mother and each year fresh garlands will be placed upon it, for each year the memory of mother seems tenderer to her children.

In other ways, too, the day was observed in Atlanta. In the hotel lobbies and other public places small subscription boxes were placed where donations might be given to the Home for Old Women, and many took occasion to show their respect to their own mothers by aiding the old mothers out at the home.

DR. BELK PREACHES TO NORMAL STUDENTS

Dr. S. R. Belk, of Park Street Methodist church, south, preached a strong and pointed sermon to the faculty, students and friends of the Atlanta Normal and Industrial Institute in the Cosmopolitan A. M. E. church, corner Vine and Foundry streets, yesterday afternoon.

His subject was "Godliness with Contentment Is Great Gain." The speaker pleaded with a large and intelligent audience to first lay a foundation of permanence which, he claimed, had not been successfully done if the world's history is to be believed, with God left out. Said he, "Money is not the greatest thing in the world, but character and a definite and an honest purpose that meant to be useful in the uplift of humanity and making the world better for having come into it."

He laid down three propositions: honesty of purpose; keeping one's self pure; and doing one's duty—three essentials that would bring life to a safe and happy end. Representatives from the different negro colleges, public schools, and leading churches were present.

From the "amens" from different parts of the house, Dr. Belk moved his big audience to tears. Revs. S. B. Sims, pastor, and S. F. Andrews, of St. Paul, were loud in their praise of the sermon, and took part in the service. Principal Stinson said the school would hold its closing exercises at the same place Friday night. Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, North Avenue Presbyterian church, delivers the annual address.

Imports Are Heavy.

Washington, May 11.—Imports of manufacturers' materials this year into the United States will exceed those of any previous fiscal year, if the figures of the first nine months, ending with March, can be taken as a criterion. Statistics by the department of commerce show that eight of the ten important articles forming the bulk of such imports are in excess of previous high water marks.

CHARGES OF TORTURE ARE DENIED BY ADAMS

Anderson, S. C., May 11.—W. W. Adams, a magistrate's deputy of Anderson county, who was arrested in Asheville, N. C., on the statement of a negro named John Walker, that Adams, assisted by two white men, hung him up by his thumbs and otherwise tortured him in this county to make him promise to give false testimony against Sam Huff, the latter tried in Asheville for the murder of Policeman E. C. McConnell, arrived here this afternoon and vehemently denies the charge. Adams demanded trial immediately on his arrest, and an Asheville magistrate dismissed the proceedings when Walker refused to come into the court room and testify against him. Adams bears a good reputation, and his denial is accepted as the truth here where he is known.

Adams arrested Huff in Atlanta last fall, hoping to take down the reward of $850. After the arrest Adams learned that John Walker, of Anderson, had made a statement to the effect that he knew Huff well, and that Huff had admitted to him that he got into trouble in North Carolina and was wanted by the authorities. Walker was arrested on a subpoena sent out from Asheville, and was taken by Adams to Asheville. Adams says there is not one word of truth in the charge. Adams believes the friends of Huff are at the bottom of his charges, which have been dismissed.

U. S. "MONEY LAUNDRY" GETS INTO FULL SWING

Washington, May 11.—The federal government's "money laundry" will be in full swing this week, when the treasury department will begin the operation of four currency washing machines, turning out daily 100,000 washed and ironed notes which otherwise would be destroyed.

Simultaneously with this experiment, the question of forbidding the washing of money because of the alleged danger of counterfeiting is being agitated in congress. Secretary McAdoo and Treasurer Burke, however, have announced their intention to give the machines a fair trial.

The one machine installed in the treasury several months ago has been reinforced by three improved models.

The sub-treasury at New York already has four machines, and those at Boston and Philadelphia one each. It is claimed the laundry will save the government a half-million dollars or more yearly.

The department has made arrangements to reduce the working force of the bureau of engraving and printing, although it is said that probably not more than eighty or ninety printers will lose their jobs.

Advocates of the washing machine claim it will reduce the output of the big printery by 20,000,000 notes annually.

ALL NATIONS JOINING IN WAR AGAINST OPIUM

Washington, May 11.—The international opium conference wiss reassemble at The Hague next month, the exact date to be announced as soon as responses to the invitation have been received from the governments of Peru, Turkey, Greece and Switzerland. Working in conjunction with the government of the Netherlands, the state department here has now managed to secure assent to the conference not only from the twelve signatory powers, participants in the original conference, but from a majority of the other thirty-four nations of the world, regarded as essential to a successful covenant to finally abolish the opium traffic in all but medicinal preparations.

The result has been brought about only by constant and prolonged pressure, and one of the successful features of the undertaking has been the final agreement of the British government to suspend permanently all further exportations of Indian opium into China.

The moving spirits in the conference in this country anticipate the purchase by the British government of the $60,000,000 worth of opium now held in Shanghai and its return for consumption to India, in view of the final determination of the Chinese government not to allow this drug to be sold to its own people.

COTTON CROP FACING CRITICAL SITUATION

Dry Weather and Cool Nights Do Damage—Much Replanting Is Necessary.

New Orleans, La., May 11.—The interest of the cotton trade this week will probably be almost wholly centered on the new crop situation. The old crop did not attract much attention last week, and it promises to attract less this week. Old crop holdings are gradually being liquidated and transferred to the new crop months, and from now on October and December promise to become more active than July.

The new crop is in a more or less critical condition because of the drouthy conditions in the eastern belt and the continued low night temperatures. Probably this latter feature is of more importance than the first, although market writers are giving it less prominence. If temperatures do not warm up this week and if rains do not fall in the Atlantics the bulls will be given a decided advantage. Already much replanting has been necessary, some sections reporting even the third replanting, and continued unfavorable conditions will have a tendency to increase the necessity of it. This may lead to some abandonment of acreage and would mean a late start for a part of the crop which, in some measure, would offset the large area originally broken for cotton this year. Principally it will be a weather market this year.

The increased exports of late have been surprising to nearly every one, but there have been few signs of a good forward business in the spot department. How spinners are going to view the new crop is a big question which all traders are anxious to solve. Any signs that exporters are selling spinners cotton for fall and winter delivery will probably be the signal for bull activity in futures this week, while continued holding off will encourage the short side.

RAILWAY CONDUCTORS GATHER IN DETROIT

Detroit, Mich., May 11.—The order of railway conductors, comprising 49,000 members in the states and territories, the Dominion of Canada and Mexico, will meet in biennial convention here tomorrow to discuss the enactment of new laws and amendments to the old ones. It was announced by the committee on arrangements that wage questions are not likely to come up for any official action.

It has been predicted that one of the matters that will came up will be whether to move the headquarters of the organization from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, to some other city. The headquarters have been established in Cedar Rapids for nearly 20 years. The convention is scheduled to last from ten days to two weeks.

DANIELS ENTERTAINED BY COL. P. A. STOVALL

Savannah, Ga., May 11.—Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels and party arrived in Savannah at 5:30 p. m., on the torpedo-boat destroyer Reid, and went at once to the home of Colonel P. A. Stovall, editor of The Savannah Press, where they spent a quiet evening, the secretary being the guest of honor at a dinner given by North Carolinians resident in Savannah. Mr. Daniels made an informal talk, expressing his pleasure at meeting his Savannah friends, but no formal addresses were delivered and the affair was thoroughly informal.

The Daniels party left on a late train for Raleigh, N. C., whence the secretary will go direct to Washington.

FAIR WEATHER TODAY, SAYS THE FORECASTER

Fair and cooler weather on Sunday carried out the weatherman's forecast to perfection and gave delight to hundreds of city people who desired a clear and cool day upon which to rest.

Without any change taking place in the atmosphere as the sun set, a clear day turned into a clear night, and the prospect for today is continued fair weather and a normal temperature.

MOTHERS HONORED AT NATIONAL CAPITAL

Washington, May 11.—"Mothers' Day" was generally observed in the national capitol today. President Wilson, cabinet officers, members of congress and thousands of Washingtonians joined in paying homage by wearing white carnations and attending church services where "Motherhood" was the theme of the sermons. The president and members of his family attended services at the Central Presbyterian church this morning.

TWO AUTOS DESTROYED WHEN GARAGE BURNS

Machines Were the Property of Carl Witt and of Arthur Reed.

Two automobiles, valued at about $5,000, were completely destroyed at about 3:30 o'clock last night, when the private garage in the rear of the Mendenhall apartments, 521 Peachtree street, burned down. A third car, belonging to G. C. Rogers, was saved by the owner, who was painfully burned on his right arm and neck.

The entire damage done was in the neighborhood of $8,000. Once started, the fire spread with such rapidity that, although an engine house is less than three blocks away, the garage was destroyed by the time that the fire department arrived.

No one was able to explain how the fire started. It is thought, however, that someone dropped a lit cigarette on the floor near some waste without stamping it out.

Carl Witt and Arthur Reed owned the two cars destroyed. Mr. Reed's automobile was a Chalmers and Mr. Witt's an Everett.

FIGHT FOR PURE FLOUR TO THE SUPREME COURT

Washington, May 11.—The fight for "pure" flour has been carried to the supreme court by the department of justice. Attorney General McReynolds and Assistant Attorney General Adkins have filed with the court an application for a review of the decision of the United States circuit court of appeals which denied the right of the government to condemn flour bleached by electricity by the Alsop process. The controversy turns upon the interpretation of that section of the pure food and drugs act which declares that an article shall be deemed adulterated if it contain any added poisonous ingredient which may render such article injurious to health. The government claims that the law forbids the addition of any poisonous ingredient to an article even though the quantity be minute and the resulting injury to health from the particular article incapable of measurement. The circuit court of appeals held that the poisonous ingredient must be added in such quantity that there is a possibility of injury to health.

The construction put upon the law by the circuit court of appeals will render the statute difficult, if not impossible of enforcement, according to the attorney general.

AERONAUTIC COURSES IN TECHNICAL COLLEGES

Washington, May 11.—Interest in aeronautics, particularly among technical universities and colleges, has increased, following the reopening recently of the Langly laboratory at the Smithsonian institution as the nucleus for a national aerodynamic laboratory. With a view to establishing courses in aeronautics a number of technical colleges have applied to both the army and navy for detail of officers versed in aeronautics to help them to outline courses of study, lectures and laboratory work to supplement that of the National laboratory.

The first officer to be detailed on this work is Lieutenant J. C. Hunsacker, naval constructor, who has been asked for by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The application for his detail has been approved, and probably will be made within a few days.

GIVE THREE MATINEES EACH WEEK AT ATLANTA

The Atlanta theater management announces a new policy in regard to matinees beginning today, when "Are You a Mason?" will be presented by the Miss Billy Long company. Three matinees each week will be played hereafter, the first being on Monday afternoon, the others following on Wednesdays and Saturdays. The first of the Monday afternoon performances will be given at 2:30 today.

Much interest is attached by the Atlanta company because of the presence in the cast of Miss Agnes Tinsley Harrison, a local society girl, whose debut last week was so successful she was engaged for the season. Miss Harrison has an important part in this week's production, but will be given greater opportunity in the future.

ILLS OF THE G. O. P. ARE CONSIDERED

Republicans Meet in Chicago to Discuss Reorganization. Convention May Be Held During Year.

Chicago, Ill., May 11.—Proposals to reorganize the republican party were discussed at a conference here today between six republican United States senators and 32 other republican leaders, representing nine states. The immediate subject before the conference was as to what action shall be sought at the meeting of the republican national committee at Washington on May 24, looking toward "re-organizing the party along progressive lines" and as to whether there shall be a republican national convention this year.

The conference lasted for more than four hours and was held in a hotel overlooking the lake in a room where the seven governors last year drafted the letter urging Colonel Roosevelt to be a candidate for the presidency. Although the public was not admitted Senator Albert B. Cummins stated, "It was merely an informal talk, a sort of round table discussion of what may be done for the best interests of the party by reorganizing it along progressive lines."

Presided over by Senator Sherman, of Illinois, the discussion was participated in by Senators Cummins, William E. Borah, of Idaho; Crawford, of South Dakota; Grenna, of North Dakota; Kenyon, of Iowa; Congressman Hayes, of California; Congressman Goode, of Iowa, and many members of state legislatures.

Convention Is Necessary.

"Did you come to a decision whether there ought to be a national convention this year?" Senator Cummins was asked.

"We did not decide on that, but every one seems to feel that the condition of the party seems to necessitate a convention this year. Our informal talk today will be followed by a more formal conference tomorrow, when former Governor Hadley, of Missouri, will be here. We then will issue a statement telling just what we think ought to be done in behalf of the party."

Somebody asked Senator Kenyon whether there was to be an effort made to get a new national committee.

"The subject did not come up, but most of us would have no objection if the present committeemen resigned," replied Senator Kenyon. "What did come up was a proposition to have the next committee take office soon after its election so that it might pass upon the credentials of the delegates to the 1916 convention."

The conference brought together the largest assemblage of republican leaders in Chicago since last year's convention. When Senator Kenyon noticed that the room assigned for the conference was also the one used as the progressive party headquarters, he said:

"What! What! Are we going to re-organize the republican party in the very room where the progressive party was born?"

Statement by Sherman.

When the meeting adjourned for the day Senator Sherman gave out what he said was a synopsis of the discussion:

"We considered," he said, "whether the national committee should be as inflexible in character as it has been. The opinion was that the committee would be amenable to public opinion and keep pace with what is going on. There was no definite action on the question of calling a national convention this year. A call, of course, would have to come from the national committee. The question then arose as to whether the committee would issue a call, and we felt that the committee would yield to the sentiment of republicans generally on that point, as last year's election was a pretty positive indicator that radical changes should be made.

"We agreed that southern representation in the convention should be cut down according to the strength of the party in each southern state. We did not take up the details as to how this should be done, but left that to be worked out later.

"Presidential primaries were not considered, but I think we are all agreed as being in favor of them. Our whole conference was merely informal, permitting us a free and easy interchange of views as to ways and means of reorganizing the party as some of us progressive republicans see it."

Senator Cummins, who has been here since yesterday arranging for the meeting, was asked why the formal meeting was put off until tomorrow to await former Governor Hadley's arrival.

"Well," he said, "our meeting tomorrow won't be anything more than a continuation of today's meeting, only on account of its being Sunday we did not want to transact what might be considered business."

Concrete Proposal.

A concrete proposal for the rehabilitation of the republican party is to be presented tomorrow to the conference of republican senators and leaders here by a committee of five appointed tonight after the conferees had discussed fully the situation. Tomorrow's conference is to revolve about the report which the committee drafted tonight and which is to express the consensus of opinion of the republican leaders attending the meeting. The committee is composed of Robert Luce, Massachusetts; Senator Borah, Idaho; State Senator W. Frank James, Michigan; United States Senator W. S. Kenyon, Iowa, and State Senator James Trautman, Kansas.

DUKE SUES DUCHESS FOR DIVORCE

A sensation is promised when the suit for divorce brought by the Duke of Westminster comes to trial. Following the filing of his papers in the case, which named the Duke of Alba as corespondent, society looked for the filing of a counter suit by the duchess. The marital split had long been expected. The domestic troubles of Hugh Richard Arthur Grosvenor, second duke of Westminster, and his duchess have for some time been public property, and divorce proceedings have been freely predicted. Their marriage took place in 1901, and they have two children, Lady Ursula Grosvenor, aged 11, and Lady Mary, aged 3. The duchess, daughter of Colonel Cornwallis West, is a sister of the Princess of Pless, and her only brother is George Cornwallis West, the second husband of the former Lady Randolph Churchill. The Duke of Westminster, who was born in 1879, is one of the richest men in England, owning 20,000 acres in Cheshire and Flintshire and 600 acres in London. He is chiefly known as a sportsman, especially as a keen polofist. The duke is paying the expenses of the British polo team that recently left for the United States to compete with the American team for the International championship. Last March the couple formally separated. Photographs published last winter in the papers showing the duchess hand in hand on the ice and waltzing and tobogganing with a professional skater in Switzerland are believed to have been a partial cause of the separation. The duchess is described as very handsome, dashing and stylish, with a splendid figure, dark brown hair, blue gray eyes and dark eyebrows.

"Paradise Lost" Enacted Today In Struggles of Man With Sin

Milton's immortal tragedy of heaven and earth—"Paradise Lost"—is enacted over and over again in the lives of men today, says Dr. Dunbar Ogden, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church and moderato, of the Atlanta Presbytery. Sunday he delivered twin sermons on this theme, speaking in the morning on "Paradise Lost—the Tragedy of Sin," and in the evening on "Paradise Regained—the Triumph of Salvation."

"Just as in that marvelous poem, he who sinned was driven from the face of God and found banishment and disappointment as the result of his sin," said Dr. Ogden, "so is it today with every man who has the opportunity to live right before God, but who sins, and thus starts again the tragedy of 'Paradise Lost.'

"But with his wonderful insight into human and divine nature, the blind poet also told the story of Paradise Regained,' showing how the love of Almighty God could come down and lift up the fallen, and this, too, is lived over again many times in the lives we see around us, revealing the triumph of salvation through all the ages."

Dr. Ogden made a detailed study of the effect of sin upon human lives, outlining it as follows:

First—Sin brings disappointment. Its luring promises held forth to us are never fulfilled, and instead of possessing all wisdom, as the serpent promised Adam and Eve, we cower in the bushes.

Second—Sin brings banishment. Not that God hurls us forcibly out when we sin, but something enters our lives which gradually drags us away from His presence.

Third—Sin brings bondage. Men are enslaved to their evil habits and life is made miserable, while a righteous life possesses always "freedom."

Fourth—Sin brings death. Men lose through sin their natural inheritance of immortal life.

Fifth—Sin has a terrible power of transmission. On the floods of love it goes out to those around us, and in the channels of blood it goes down to those who are to follow us. The contagion of sin is one of its greatest horrors, warning men from following its siren lure.

WILSON CIRCLES ABOUT THE CAPITOL

sion to get well under way at least, and to be completed if possible, brought the subject to the fore among the senators and before he sends a message to congress on the subject with a definite plan in view, the president will negotiate further.

Leaders close to the president, it is said, will take the matter up during the week. Senators will be interviewed and informed of the president's wish. It will be pointed out that tariff and currency reform should come at the same time; that the country is entitled to the changes simultaneously in order to adjust itself. Senators who wish to delay currency legislation will be asked to put aside if possible their personal convenience for public welfare.

In the meantime the tariff fight in the senate will be resumed Tuesday on the amendment by Senator Penrose to refer the bill to the finance committee with instructions to hold public hearings. It is expected that night that the republicans are prepared to filibuster on the issue of hearings which the democrats have determined not to hold.

Penrose to Hold Up Bill.

Word has come that Senator Penrose in Philadelphia yesterday announced that republican senators proposed to speak on his amendment at length and as there is no way to shut off debate, it may be a week or even longer before the bill can formally be referred to finance committee. The sub-committee, however, are continuing at work and will be ready, within a few weeks with the draft of the schedules as they are to be reported to the full committee and probably as they will go to the senate.

A lively and prolonged fight is certain, the present prospect being that the bill can not pass before August 1. Meantime, until June 1, the house will be re-organizing and marking time.

MEXICANS ARE STONED BY MOB OF AMERICANS

Globe, Ariz., May 11.—One man stoned to death and another seriously hurt in a race war today at Miami, six miles from Globe, between Americans and Mexicans. A number of Americans were the aggressors, and three of them are in the county jail here.

A gang of Americans determined to run the Mexicans out of the town, and the first they encountered were Jose Peres and M. Ortez. The Mexicans were chased though the streets until they dropped, owing to injuries. Peres died soon afterwards and Ortez was taken to a hospital. A free-for-all fight, in which about fifty men took part, followed, and not until the arrival of Sheriff Frank Haynes and a posse from Globe did the rioting cease.

The officers with drawn revolvers arrested the three alleged ring leaders.

KEY TO THE MYSTERY OF THE SIEGEL MURDER

San Francisco, Cal., May 11.—A key to the mystery of the murder of Elsie Siegel, granddaughter of General Franz Siegel, a civil war hero, in New York's Chinatown, June 18, 1909, is believed to have been found in the city of Oakland. In searching the rooms of Lee Dor, a Chinese arrested recently by the federal authorities charged with having opium in his possession, the officers found a complete set of press clippings describing the death of the Siegel girl and a number of photographs of beautiful white women.

Prior to his discovery the prisoner had been released under $1,000 bond. His whereabouts now is unknown. The Chinese suspected of strangling Elsie Siegel was Leon Ling. His description does not tally with that of Lee Dor.

CONSCIENCE MONEY PAID WHEN HE GETS RELIGION

Dalton, Ga., May 11.—Religion of the "holy rollers" brand caused a man whose name the First National bank won't divulge to pay that institution $1 in conscience money, which, he stated, he fraudulently obtained from the bank five years ago, after having a check for $10 cashed. He returned to the bank shortly after cashing the check with a counterfeit dollar, which he claimed the bank had given him. On his making affidavit to that effect he received another dollar. In paying his conscience money, he stated he had placed the $10 in a clock and was confident some one substituted the counterfeit while his money was there.

GREAT DREADNAUGHT FOR THE UNITED STATES

Congress Will Be Asked to Appropriate $20,000,000 for One Warship.

Washington, May 11.—Congress will be asked next year to appropriate for one battleship, a mammoth dreadnaught displacing 40,000 tons and costing about twenty million dollars, according to tentative plans of the navy general board, made public today. This year the navy department asked for three battleships and got one as it did last year when two were asked for.

During the debate on the naval bill this year members of congress particularly interested in the navy became satisfied that, while there were two extreme factions, one advocating appropriations for two or three first-class battleships a year and the other with "no battleships", as a slogan, an overwhelming majority in both houses could be counted upon to vote for a single dreadnaught. This situation has been impressed upon the general board, and as a result the permanent building program may be revised to a one-dreadnaught basis, with provision for adequate colliers, destroyers and other auxiliary craft.

This one battleship, however, will be a monster, if the board's plans materialize. With a displacement of 40,000 tons she would be just about one-fourth larger than any ship yet authorized by congress and would easily rank as the largest and most formidable craft of war in the world. The plans contemplate giving the dreadnaught engines that would drive her through the water at the rate of twenty-five knots an hour—faster than the unarmored, "Greyhounds" of the navy could travel a few years ago—without sacrificing anything in more powerful batteries or seaworthiness. Just what the armament would be has not been announced, but it certainly would be equal to that of the last ship authorized, which is to carry a main battery of twelve 14-inch rifles, mounted in four turrets, three guns to a turret.

WITH THE THEATERS

"Are You a Mason?"

(At the Atlanta.)

Tonight the Miss Billy Long stock company will present the best farce comedy of recent years, "Are You a Mason?" at the Atlanta for the first night performance of the week. This afternoon the first Monday matinee of the season will be given, the performance being scheduled because of the unusual demand for seats for matinee performances. Three matinees will be played each week hereafter, the others being Wednesday and Saturday. "Are You a Mason?" is a fine farce, which has a thousand laughs, and the members of the stock company have been admirably cast for its presentation.

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Forsyth.)

Paul Dickey, the Michigan football star, will excite interest this week at the Forsyth, with his own company and his own playlet, "The Come Back." The Apollo Trio will appear on this bill in living reproductions of the most famous bronze statues of Roman and Greek history. Newhoff and Phelps, in a comedy creation that has been winning favor in the Keith houses; Clarence Wilbur and his Sunny Folks; Billy K. Wells, "The Orator;" May and Allman, the singers, and McAlevy's Marvels, a duo of champion jumpers, make up the rest of the program.

Good to the "Newsies."

Mrs. Ralph Pulitzer is heading a movement to erect a fine club house for the newsboys of New York city, and she hopes similar movements will be taken up in other large cities. Her idea is to give the youngsters who make their living selling papers a common home, where they can get enjoyment out of life in the right way. She is chairman of the committee which is raising funds for the club house. Other prominent women on the committee are Mrs. Hector H. Havemeyer, vice chairman; Mrs. Ogden Reid, secretary; Mrs. William A. M. Burden, treasurer; Mrs. Ogden L. Mills, Mrs. Millard D. Straight, Mrs. Arthur C. Train and Mrs. Malcolm D. Whitman.

PLAYERS' CLUB TO HOLD REHEARSALS DAILY THIS WEEK

In preparation for their next play, Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest," the Atlanta Players' club will hold daily rehearsals this week at the Grand opera house. Because of the theater being dark, the opportunity has thus been afforded them of rehearsing upon the stage, and under the direction of Warren A. Rogers, the dramatic director of the club, the work is progressing steadily.

The exact date of the performance will be announced within a day or two. It will either be the last of next week or the early part of the week following.

Mrs. John Marshall Slaton, Miss Hildreth Burton-Smith and Lamar Hill take the three most important parts in the play, and they are ably supported by Mrs. William Owens, Mrs. Henry Bernard Scott, Marsh Adair, Hamilton Douglas, Jr., and R. Frank Taylor.

CINCINNATI MENACED BY A GREAT LOCKOUT

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 11.—One of the largest tie-ups the building trades of this city has ever known is practically assured to begin tomorrow. The Construction Employers' association has announced its intention of inaugurating a lockout of union employees and the building trades council, embracing all the unions engaged in construction work, announced officially tonight its intention to retaliate by calling a general strike.

The strike, if called, will include 5,000 men. Efforts are being made to have sympathetic strikes ordered by other unions.

The labor situation is further complicated by a strike of 300 freight handlers employed by the Cincinnati, Cleveland, Chicago and St. Louis, the Baltimore and Ohio and the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton railroads. The men have been out since Thursday.

WOMEN STREW FLOWERS FOR THE KING OF SPAIN

Madrid, May 11.—The Spanish people, proud of King Alfonso's personal popularity in France, greeted the sovereign on his return today from Paris with unusual enthusiasm. Women strewed flowers in the king's path.

King Alfonso and the German emperor will meet in Holland on the occasion of the international regatta in the summer, according to The Tribuna.

This is considered significant in view of the present strong influence which the triple entente has over the king, possibly foreshadowing a Franco-Spanish military alliance, which the German emperor does not welcome.

Scourged by Tonsilitis.

Canton, Mass., May 11.—Three more deaths from tonsilitis occurred today, bringing the total since the epidemic started last week to sixteen. Nearly 400 cases of the disease have been reported in the town. No public services were held today, and the public library and schools will remain closed next week.

DESTRUCTIVE TYPHOON SWEEPS PHILIPPINES

Known Fatalities Total 58, and List Is Swelling—Many Vessels Wrecked.

Manila, May 12.—The worst typhoon experienced in years struck the islands today, causing many deaths and wrecking several small steamers and numerous lighter craft.

The known fatalities at sea total fifty-eight, but the total death list from the storm is swelling with incoming reports.

It is believed no Americans lost their lives.

Strike Stops Traffic.

Colorado Springs, Col., May 11.—Service on the Colorado Springs and suburban electric lines was suspended this evening after attempts had been made to operate with strike-breakers and the few old men remaining loyal. The cause of the trouble is a new time schedule posted by the company.

FIRST CHRISTIAN WINS S. S. CONTEST

"But You Had to Break a World's Record to Do It," Says Losing Superintendent. Picnic Next on Program.

By a score of 60,358 to 50,074, the First Christian Sunday school has won the attendance contest with the Second Baptist, which has for the past three months held the interest of not only Atlanta, but the whole country, and has stirred up a Sunday school revival such as Georgia has never known before.

When the result of the contest was announced Sunday morning after the day's count had been made, a wave of enthusiasm swept over the audience that packed the First Christian church. The applause grew even greater when the superintendent of the winning school, C. W. LeCraw, stepped to the front of the stage hand-in-hand with the losing superintendent, John S. Spalding, whom he introduced for a speech on "What I Think About the First Christian Sunday school."

"Well, you've beaten us—but you had to break a world's record to do it," said Mr. Spalding. "I just want to offer the most cordial congratulations of the entire Second Baptist Sunday school, and to say that you've worked so hard and so nobly that you deserve everything you've won.

"Just as soon as we can find a place big enough for these two great Sunday schools to get together, we're going to tell you about the picnic."

Interest Centers in Picnic.

Now that the contest is over, the event of supreme interest will be the great joint picnic which will be held by the two schools at some park or picnic grounds within the next month or six weeks. The arrangements for the picnic will be made by a joint committee from the two schools appointed to decide on the details.

It will be be a real "feast of fellowship" as well as a picnic, and without a doubt will be entirely out of the ordinary run of Sunday school picnics. All the members of both schools will probably contribute baskets to the great spread which will be laid out for the thousands of people present.

The attendance competition between the two schools will not cease with the close of the contest, but every Sunday they will exchange reports, just as during the past three months, to see which one has the most in attendance each Sunday and which holds its largest attendance better than the other. Both schools are planning a continuation of social meetings and institutional features in order to retain their membership, and the First Christian, which has gained the title of the "biggest Sunday school in the world," is going to make a strong effort to retain that title.

"May Feast Day" Next Friday.

On next Friday the First Christian will hold the first of these events, its "May Feast Day," when a chicken dinner and supper will be served in the church by the ladies. It will be a big fellowship event, the ladies having ordered 80 pounds of beef, 50 chickens and 200 pounds of ice. Dozens of events like this are being planned by both the Second Baptist and the First Christian schools, who are determined to keep the Sunday school leadership of Atlanta without falling down upon the clone of their contest.

Both schools are facing the probability of another contest on their hands. The First Christian, as the winner of this contest, is liable to challenge by any other school in order to defend its title of "the best Sunday school in Atlanta." The Second Baptist, on the other hand, would be the center of war in the event of the mammoth Methodist-Baptist contest which has been proposed.

The announcement of the contest standing on the closing day was as follows:

	Second Baptist Christian.	First.
Attendance	1,232	1,472
Points scored	3,838	5,021
Final standing	52,074	60,358

Baptists Postpone Challenge.

At the meeting of the Baptist pastors and superintendents Sunday afternoon at the First Baptist church the question of issuing a challenge to all the Atlanta Sunday schools of the Methodist denomination came up for consideration, but no definite action was taken.

A number of the Baptists addressed the meeting strongly in favor of issuing the challenge and holding a mighty interdenominational contest. Dr. John E. White was one of its most ardent advocates, telling the gathering of what wonderful results had been obtained in his own church through the Sunday school contest with the First Christian, and arguing that the whole Sunday school system of Atlanta would be wonderfully benefited by such a contest between the Methodists and Baptists.

Owing to the fact that practically every Baptist pastor of Atlanta is leaving the city on Monday to attend the ten days' convention of the Southern Baptist church, in St. Louis, and also that there were a number of churches not represented at the meeting Sunday afternoon, the proposition of issuing the challenge was carried over to a future meeting and will probably not be decided definitely for several weeks yet.

Shot Him for Burglar.

Mobile, Ala., May 11.—J. R. Pettit, a painted, who recently came to Mobile from Nashville, Tenn., was shot and seriously wounded at 4 o'clock this morning by J. F. Sherman at the latter's residence here. Mr. Sherman believed Pettit to be a burglar and shot him with a revolver, thinking he was protecting his home, he told the police. Pettit was taken to the city hospital, and though seriously shot in the leg, shoulder and hand, is not in danger of death.

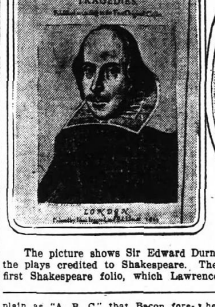
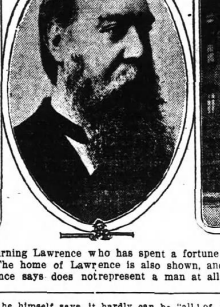
While All the World Laughs

HE SPENDS FORTUNE ON QUEER BELIEFS





The picture shows Sir Edward Durning Lawrence who has spent a fortune to prove that Lord Bacon wrote the plays credited to Shakespeare. The home of Lawrence is also shown, and a portrait of the "Baw" in the first Shakespeare folio, which Lawrence says does notrepresent a man at all.

(Copyright, 1913, by Curtis Brown.)

London, May 11. — Only a few doors from William Waldorf Astor, in aristocratic Carlton House Terrace, London, lives a rich English baronet, who probably is the best laughed-at man in the world at present. He is Sir Edwin Durning-Lawrence, a former member of parliament, whose years total 76, and he is the butt of jokesmiths and satirists the world over because of the queer beliefs he holds about the authorship of the works attributed to Sheakespeare, and a lot of other things.

Like most folk, you probably don't care two straws whether Shakespeare or Bacon or Artemus Ward wrote the Shakespeare plays, but pray don't stop reading in the fear that this article is the million and oneth that has been written to settle the etrenal question one way or the other. Nothing of the kind; its only object is to make you more intimately familiar with the quaint and entertaining personality of Sir Edwin Durning-Lawrence, Bart., who, among other things, is the fiercest Baconite going. His favorite designation of Shakespeare is "the drunken, illiterate clown of Stratford-on-Avon," "and for nearly2 twenty-five years, or ever since Ignatius Donnelly's famous book started him off on the subject, he has been spending most of his time and money in endeavoring to prove that Bacon was the author, not only of the plays and sonnets attributed to Shakespeare, but of everything else of importance that was produced in the Elizabethan age, including the English translation of the Bible, Spencer's "Faerie Queene," Sir Philip Sidney's "Arcadia," and even "Don Quixote," which Sir Edwin says Cervantes merely translated into Spanish. Sir Edwin also believes that Bacon, when he had a few days to spare, wrote the famous essays hitherto attributed to Mont—but no, the list of works already given is quite enough to go on with, and Sir Edwin declared when seen at his big town house the other day that he was not yet quite ready to announce his latest proof of the astonishing productiveness of the busy Bacon.

He Spends Lavishly.

It would not surprise one in the least to learn that the baronet has spent a million dollars in trying to solve the Baron-Shakespeare mystery. The books that he bought to aid him in his researches—including six Shakespeare First Folio, which he got from the late Lord Ashburnham for $15,000—represent an expenditure of $250,000; and have been collected from the four corners of Europe. He says that once, when he wanted a certain rare volume —which finally turned up in Italy—he sent out over 3,000 advertisements for it, which is a fair specimen of his regardless of expense, in the pursuit of his hobby. A copy of his book, "Bacon Is Shakespeare," which appeared in 1910, and the publication of which in that year, Sir Edwin believes, was foreseen by Bacon, has been placed in every library of importance in the world, including those in Japan, and the baronet has distributed over 500,000 copies of his latest pamphlet, "The Shakespeare Myth," in this country, and now threatens to distribute a similar number in the United States. All this must have cost him thousands of dollars more, but when I asked him point blank how much he had spent in the hope of convincing the world that Lord Bacon was the greatest literary syndicate on record, he replied that he didn't know and didn't care.

The fashion in which he endeavors to prove that Bacon wrote Shakespeare is amazing. From page 53 of "The Shakespeare Myth," Sir Edwin declares that "for reasons which it is unnecessary to discuss," Bacon selected the number 53 as the "key to his mystery," and then turning to the First Folio (which, it appears, contains three pages numbered 53), the baronet proceeds to show that on the first page thus numbered are the words "pig" and "hog," and the observation, "hang-hog is latten for Bacon. I warrant you," and on the second page of the statement "I have a gammon of Bacon," on the third page 53 there is nothing of the kind, but that does not fease Sir Edwin. He remarks quietly that we must look for the "invisible page 53," which he explains is page 53 counting from the end, and here is a prize indeed! For on this page 53 we find three lines beginning respectively with the words "Pompey," "in" and "got," the initials of which form the word "pig," which, Sir Edwin says, is what we are looking for. A few pages further on we find three more lines which, reading from the end, time, form the word "sow," which the baronet observes, is just as much Bacon as "hang-hog," and which, he declares, makes the case more certain than it was before. There is more, too, for on one of these pages 53 (I forget whether it is a visible or an invisible one), the baronet finds the word "wild boar," and it seems that a wild boar was Bacon's crest. That obviously settles Shakespeare.

It Sounds Ridiculous.

Of course it all sounds grotesquely ridiculous and humorists have little difficulty in making great game of Sir Edwin and his pigs and cows and gammons of Bacon. One of them succeeded, the other day, in proving from the program of "Peter Fan" that not J. M. Barrie, but Durning-Lawrence himself was the author of the Barrie and other Barrie plays, not to mention those of Ibsen, Hauptmann, Pinero, Gorky, D'Annunzio and George Bernard Shaw.

This really ingenious and funny parody hit off perhaps the weirdest of all the baronet's notions, i. e. his conviction that Bacon foresaw that he, Sir Edwin, would publish the key to the great mystery in the year 1910. At this conclusion the baronet arrives by the simple process of counting the letters in the rhymed "Address to the Reader," which faces the title page of the first folio of the plays, and, being signed B. I., is usually ascribed to Ben Jonson. Sir Edward finds that this verse contains 287 letters, a Masonic number, he says, often repeated through the folio. "My book, 'Bacon is Shakespeare,'" he says, "was published in 1910, i. e. 287 years after 1623." So, of course, it's as plain as "A. B. C." that Bacon foresaw Durning-Lawrence!

Sir Edwin, who, besides being an ex-M. P., has the dignity of J. P., or in other words is entitled to sit as a magistrate, owns one of the finest mansions in Carlton house terrace and the writer waited for him on a "settle" in his hall which once belonged to Queen Adelaide, the wife of George IV., and which bears the royal arms. His near neighbors include, besides William Waldorf Astor, whom he frequently entertains and by whom he is entertained in return, that renowned sportsman, Lord Lonsdale, Lord Cowdray, formerly Sir Westman Pearson, who today disputes the oil supremacy of John D. Rockefeller, and Lord Mount Stephen, the famous capitalist and philanthropis who is a Canadian by adoption, while on the other side of the street lives the Right Hon. Arthur J. Balfour, former prime minister. With all of these the fiery advocate of Bacon is on terms of intimacy, and he is likewise a member of five of the best clubs in London, including the distinguished Athenaeum and the famous Reform.

Speaking of W. W. Astor, Sir Edwin remarked that the former used his Carlton house terrace residence but little, explaining "he nearly always sleeps on the embankment." As the Thames embankment, where Mr. Astor's private offices are situated, and where he evidently has residential quarters, too, is, or was until recently, when the police put a ston to it, the nightly forgathering place of all sorts of tramps and other kinds of "down-and-outs," Sir Edwin's remark that the American millionaire "slept" there may have been a jest.

Stocky Old Gentleman.

I found Sir Edwin a stocky old gentleman with a bushy white head, twinkling eyes and a benevolent manner. He wore what is known as a Norfolk jacket and from his waistband a fat bunch of keys swung majestically. He reminds one not a little of Mr. Pondefevo in Wells' "Tono Bungay," having the same old trick of emitting, as a sign of satisfaction, a little hissing sound—the kind of thing that fascinates one after it has been repeated a few times and sometimes makes him forget that the person who uses it is saying in the absorption of waiting fo it.

Sir Edwin received me in his library, a huge room whose windows command a fine view of the historic Mall in St. James park, on which, by a miracle, the sun happened to be shining. Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars would be the whole, a low estimate to put on the rare works in many languages, which line its shelves from floor to ceiling. Sir Edwin professes, at any rate, not to know how many there are of them, but one thing certain is that they all bear in some way or another on "the mystery of Bacon," of whom the baronet speaks with exactly the same reverence with which religious folks speak of God.

He talks of his books as a loving parent does of his babes, and handles them as tenderly. Some of them are the only copies of the particular work in England, and students who go to the British museum with its 4,000,000 books in the hope of consulting them have to be referred to Sir Edwin by the museum authorities. The American authoress of "The Bi-literal Cypher of Francis Bacon" was one such, and though the baronet did not scruple to refer to Mrs. Gallup as "that infernal woman" and that "mad, stupid idiot," for, as he said, purposely misleading those who would have followed in her footsteps, he expressed his admiration for and agreement with all she wrote. Ignatius Donnelly's book, which first interested Sir Edwin in the Bacon-Shakespeare question, the baronet described as "the cleverest ever written."

One book in his collection which he shows with particular pride is the copy of Spencer's "Faerie Queene," which belonged to Charles II., and an*other a tiny copy of the original edi*tion of Bacon's essays, published in 1597.

"Another little book just like this went down with Gl D. Widener, the American collector, in the Titanic," he said as he showed it. "He paid 2,000 guineas ($10,000) for it. There were only 400 copies printed. Widener got one, I got another." And then he gave his little "S-s-s-s-s!"

No Out-and-out Fanatic.

Most of the folks who ridicule Sir Edwin and his theories believe the baronet to be a bit "balmy on the crumpet," as they say over here. The writer called on him expecting to find him an out-and-out fanatic and left a wee bit impressed. Sir Edwin does not succeed in convincing one that Bacon wrote Shakespeare, to say nothing of being, as the baronet believes, the inventor of shorthand and the author of the whole of the Elizabethan literature, but when he has put before one the most striking of the queer discoveries that he has made in his twenty-five years of digging (and not just the funny ones that get quoted in the newspapers), he leaves one with an uneasy conviction that, as he himself says, it hardly can be "all accident." This much is certain, that if Sir Edwin is a fool about Bacon, he deserves to be called, as was King James of Scotland, "the wisest fool in Christendom," for he is absolutely steeped in the lore of the period in which he is so vitally interested.

"I never forget anything," is the only boast he will throw at himself, and he will refer you to some statement in the Encyclopedia Britannica (second edition) to some date in the time of Queen Elizabeth or the exact page on which Florio or Ben Jonson or Marlowe used a certain phrase as airily as you or I would quote a line from Omar or a joke by Gelett Burgess.

Let us take Sir Edwin seriously, just for a minute, and see how he supports his queer conclusions. His "pigs" and "sows" and "hang-hogs" are the least of the curious "evidence" upon which he has hit to prove that Bacon wrote the works in which they appear. Sir Edwin believes that Bacon wrote these works because, as he asserts, there was no one else capable of writing them. Sir Philip Sidney, Marlowe, Ben Jonson and the rest being, according to him, no more capable of writing the works attributed them than was the "drunken, illiterate clown of Stratford-on-Avon" of writing the immortal plays that bear his name on their title pages. The "Bard," as one might expect, is Sir Edwin's bete noir. According to the baronet, Shakespeare could not read nor even write his own name, and Sir Edwin, who was a lawyer before he went into parliament, asserts that all six of Shakespeare's supposed signatures were written by law clerks, so that not a scrap of his writing exists today.

Sir Edwin declares that Bacon con*cealed his authorship of the English* version of the Bible, "The Faerie Queene," and all the other works of the golden age of literature, because it was then "degrading" to be known as a writer, and that he concealed his identity as the writer of Shakespeare because Queen Elizabeth was so mad about "Richard II.," of which she said, according to Sir Edwin, "Sceat thou not that I am Richard II?"

I expected the baronet to hedge when asked how he got the famous "53," which he declares Bacon used as a clew, but his answer came pat.

Bacon a Master Mason.

"Bacon was a Master Mason," he said, "and the secret of his authorship was confided originally to nine members of the order, afterward increased to 33, who have handed it down. Bacon originally used the number 33, which signified his Masonic degree, as his 'key' number, and I can show dozens of clews on pages 33 of his works, but this soon struck him as too apparent and for this reason he altered it to 53. He also used the Masonic double A—the light A and the dark A—as well as the Masonic two pillars and the shibboleth as hidden evidence of his authorship, not to mention a queer use of the 'left hand' and several other clews which I could point out to you if there were time, but now let us take a look at the books!"

He began with the first folio and showed, amongst other queer things, that where the letters "P. I. G." appeared on page 33 the printing was done arbitrarily, the lines being divided in an unusual way so as to bring the words "Pompey," "in" and "got" directly under each other, and went on to direct attention to so many other at least exceedingly curious coincidences that no one could be expected to remember half of them.

"All accident," he chortled, as he turned up "clew" after "clew." "All accident. S-s-s-s-s!"

The baronet declares, by the way, that the so-called portrait of Shakespeare, commonly known as the Droeshout portrait, is not a picture of a man at all, but "a ridiculous puttyfaced mask, fixed upon a stuffed dummy clothed in a trick coat." He insists that the armorial coat, as shown, are not right and left ones, but two left arms (another tip from Lord Bacon that this "dummy" was not the author of the plays), and he quotes Gainsborough, the painter who, in 1768, wrote:

"Damn the original picture of him . . . for I think a stupider face I never beheld. It is impossible that such a mind and ray of heaven could shine with such a face and pair of eyes."

"Light and Dark A."

Then the baronet put the First Folio aside and proceeded to take down, one by one, the great works of the Elizabethan age, first pointing out that in each of them the Masonic "light and dark A" appeared on the title page, and to open them at page No. 53. He showed me "The Faerie Queene" and Folio "Second Frutes," published in 1591, and no end of other works of which most of us never even heard, and on every page 53 if there was not a "Bacon" or "pig" of some speech which could be interpreted, without too much straining, to suggest a hidden authorship, there was a picture in which a boar or some other beast of the porcine tribe figured, and in which, oftener than not, the 'light and dark A" was used to form a tent or a pyramid, and in many of which the Masonic pillars and the shibboleth also were to be found. "All accident," chuckled Sir Edwin. "S-s-s-s!"

Everything he publishes is received with derision and "Punch" has no more favorite target. I asked the baronet if he minded ridicule. "Not a bit," he said. He was sitting at his desk now, all smiles after his "demonstration." "You see I have the laugh on these poor ignorant wretches because I happen to be right."

"I believe this work is laid on me," the baronet said, a few minutes later, as I was getting ready to go. "Once before a thing was laid upon me and I carried it through. I can't tell you the details, but it prevented war between England and Russia."

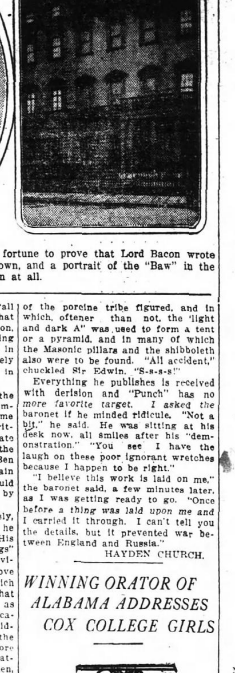
WINNING ORATOR OF ALABAMA ADDRESSES COX COLLEGE GIRLS



I. T. QUINN.

The girls of Cox college had an unusual treat Saturday morning when they assembled to hear an address from the prize orator of the Alabama universities, I. T. Quinn, of the Alabama Polytechnic institute at Auburn. Mr. Quinn recently won the Cox medal in the Alabama oratorical contest, and has attracted much attention in college circles by his oratory.

He spoke before the Cox college girls Saturday morning on the subject, "American Democracy," and his address was delivered in a splendid manner and received enthusiastically.

Te Deum for the Pope.

Rome, May 11.—A solemn te deum mass was celebrated in St. Peter's today by Cardinal Rampolla, in thanksgiving for the recovery of the pope. Thousands attended. All the churches were illuminated this evening and at St. Peter's 14,000 lanterns and torches were utilized in illuminating the facade and colonades. The center of illumination was an outline of Constantine celebrating the jubilee of the freedom of the church.

PLEATED OR PLAIN THE PEPLUM PREVAILS

New York, May 10.—After some months of hesitationf the peplum has become an established style feature. Few costumes, except house gowns pure and simple, are now made without some kind of a tail or extension to the waist. These extensions are known by a dozen different names, but all have a similar effect. The Russian and Balkan blouses are the best examples of this fashion, but these we all know, as their reign has been established for several months. But as the cool spring days give place to warmer weather much variety is seen, even in these accepted models, *not alone in development but in mate*rial as well. Pleated effects, replacing straight gathered lines, have been introduced. These, too, show much dissimilarity. They may extend straight about the form, be rounded or smartly cutaway in front and wide, much or little droop in the back. Belted coats and waists, with circular peplums reaching midway to the knees, presenting pronounced godets or decided rippling effects, are also fashionable. Russian has become the accepted name for almost every style of belted coat or waist. Its loose negligee lines and simplicity of workmanship, after arers of strictly tailored effects, have scored in its favor.

The smart waist of the frock in the first illustration is fashioned on the Russian lines. It has a peplum extending well over the hips on either side and to a point in the back. The closing of the front is a unique feature. It may be shown with the waist is two-piece, with slender lines at hem and waistline. Waist and peplum were developed in silk crepe of Cubist motif, and in shades of tan, yellow, brown and cerise. The girdle is of brown panne velvet, and the skirt of tan sponge. It is entirely up-to-date, and for spring and summer days, whether spent in city or country, will be most satisfactory.

Tunics appear either on coat or skirt. On the coat they are joined to the waist section by a wide girdle of messaline or ribbon, either in dull or gay tones. They are very much in evidence in the costume for afternoon and evening wear. Whether made of lace, net or chiffon of contrasting hue to the foundation, or of charmeuse or silk of similar tone and material, they are alike attractive. One handsome dress, of old-rose silk, recently seen, had a tunic of pale blue chiffon slightly gathered at the back and draped at the side. Another gown—of mauve charmeuse—had a tunic of plain blue net, which rippled somewhat at the lower edge. The waist was fashioned in kimono lines, and the edges of sleeves and tunic were finished with a roll of gobelin-blue satin, which made the edge firm and accented the rippling effect. Chiffon embroidered in monotones or in pleasingly contrasted shades, net with motifs of beads and jet, and lace in any color or design, are much used for these attractive waists and tunics. Finished with girdles of picot-edged, Roman striped ribbon, or ribbon with raised floral designs, and worn over a silk or messaline foundation of turquoise blue, yellow, Nell rose, pink, mauve or black and white, they make most charming costumes for any occasion.

Many of the jackets, so-called, bear some resemblance to dressing sacques. The blouse effect of the waist back and front, the fullness under the arm, the low cut of the neck with finish of frill of fine embroidery or lace, and the short skirt of peplum, confined above the waist by sash or ribbon, are the characteristics of this garment, and many are the new and fascinating materials of which such jackets may be made. Crepe, figured and brocaded silks, Futurist and Cubist silks, ratine in fancy figured designs, are all used and are all effective.

One of the most attractive of these waists is the one seen in the second figure. It is fashioned on the Russian lines, with close-fitting sleeve and high collar. It was made of Cubist silk of soft, flexible quality in tones of green, yellow and black on a background of white. A girdle of black satin finishes the waist. The skirt was made of black satin. The short peplum effect at lower left side is in very good style.

For the evening dress of chiffon or lace and the lingerie frock of batists or eyelet embroidery, a coat constructed on these loose lines is particularly desirable, as even in summer some additional warmth is often essential. Made of one of the new silks, either figured or plain, or of lace or chiffon, it is not only serviceable but a charming addition to the toilet. A combination of French colors in pink and blue, Futurist shades of purple, yellow and red, or Oriental and Occidental shades may be chosen regardless of tone, glaring or bizarre, just so long as it be sufficiently striking. Colors long considered smart no longer receive the least notice in the chronicles of Dame Fashion. Black and white, for example, surely a combination worthy of the best treatment, if used now must have another note, one or stronger appeal, to make it effective. With it are used shades of purple, cerise, Gobelin blue or Nell rose. These tones are introduced in hat and in neck ruff of net or maline. This last feature adds a charming touch to the costume, and perhaps has won more popularity than any other of the season's fads.

Certainly, the cry of the yellow peril is not without foundation. For this color is surely invading our midst. At first it came with a reluctance almost approaching timidity and established itself in blouses and drapery of chiffon net and lace. Emboldened by this success, it made its way into the evening gown of silk, charmeuse and satin, until at the present time few are the models either for afternoon or evening where this hue is not smartly in evidence. Ratine in mustard color, covert cloth and serge in shades of tan and beige, are fascinating materials which come in this extremely popular coloring.

FLAGLER IS WEAKER; NO HOPE OF RECOVERY

A few more hurlers like Gilbert E. Price and the Crackers will be right on Medicine's heels. Price has won seven games and lost but one this season.

HONEST!—CRACKERS WON A GAME

EDITED BY Dick Jemison

WHIFFS

On Other Teams.

AN EX-CRACKER can now be found on nearly every team in the Southern league. New Orleans was the only team that lacked a former Cracker, but when they won their protest over Rebel Williams, they joined the other teams in former Crackers on their payrolls. Mobile has Al O'Dell; Montgomery, George Paige and Pat Donahue; Birmingham, Bill Foster; Chattanooga, Douglas Harbison; Nashville, Dave Callahan; Memphis had Otto Jordan up until recently.

On First Base.

WAHOO SAM Crawford has heeded the popular demand of Detroit fandom, and is now stationed on the initial corner, succeeding Del Gainor, who has been going badly. Hughie High has taken a job in the outfield, Cobb moving to right field to take Crawford's place, and the midget Hugh going to the middle meadow, where Tyrus was wont to roam.

As To Big Bill.

COMMENTING on the sale of Bill Chappelle to the Crackers by the Chattanooga team, the Chattanooga Times says in part, as follows: "Chappelle should make Atlanta a winning pitcher, and this is not reflecting on the Kid's judgment. Ball players are frequently helped by a change of scene Atlanta probably hasn't a pitcher who surpasses him—probably not another as good."

Are Under Hack.

FRANK CHANCE has the following interesting statement concerning the failure of the Yanks to show:

"I am not knocking my club in any way," said the P. L, "but it is easy enough to see that it is now under hack. Every break of the game has been against the men for two years, or more, and in this time they have been pounded down so roughly and beaten so often that being human they go out each day expecting to get the worst of it. Habit is hard to break. A good start would have helped a lot, but unluckily we were called upon to meet the best of the best clubs in the league when our club was at its worst—with a crippled infield and but one pitcher ready to start.

"When the other club is able to show better pitching, better batting and better fielding you are not likely to win many games."

Appreciates Deal.

CHANCE appreciates the deal he has received at the hands of Gotham fandom. Of this he says:

"No man," he stated, "could have received cleaner or fairer treatment than I have drawn in New York. They haven't seen me win a game yet, and still I have heard no criticism. All that I ask is time to build up a machine, and they have been more than patient. Knowing baseball, they seem to understand just what we are all up against. If only Fortune in turn too far away when I can see this patience and fairness rewarded."

Barons Changing.

MOLEY is shaking up his Barons and they will begin to look like the Barons of last year shortly. Pitcher has been "farmed." With the arrival of Outfielder Knizely, Bodus was sold. When Third Baseman McDonald reports, Herndon, the Atlanta boy, will get the slip and Carroll will fill the utility roles. Catcher Clifton, of Burlington, Ia., has been signed to help out Mayer until Dilger can work again. Look out, you first division clubs, the Barons are coming.

He's In Again.

C. WEBB MURPHY, the greatest self press agent, barring possibly Teddy Roosevelt and Bat Nelson in an interview in a New York paper, states that the present Cub machine is "one of the greatest teams that ever wore a Chicago uniform." He continues, "not only will it win the pennant, but will win by at least eighteen games." Such confidence breeds prophets, makes champions and sometimes is a forerunner of crushing reverses. Said machine did not dodge the Dodgers. Dahlen's ran roughshod over the self predicted pennant winners. (Note: New York and Philadelphia are yet to be played.)

Admits It.

HUGH JENNINGS, manager of the Detroit Tigers, admits that he pulled a bone when he let Jimmy Archer get away. But he has admitted another that is sizing up as colossal. Hughie tell it. "I pulled the greatest bonehead play of my career," he says, "when I let Jimmy Archer, of the Chicago Cubs, get away from me. Now I have committed another error in letting Schaller go to the White Sox." Honest confession is good for the soul.

He Who Laughs.

BARNEY SHERIDAN, in the Mobile Register, pens the following:

"The Atlanta scribes have run out on the Crackers and refuse to say absolutely anything at all about Bill Smith dropping four straight to the Gulls. They're not even explaining it away with the old stuff about slanting, bad 'breaks,' etc., but are silent—absolutely silent. And what a difference a short time can make. In the spring the Crecker scribes were touting the Atlanta club as a sure winner. When the season opened and the Crackers won six straight, they knew it was all over and begged Billy Smith not to make a runaway affair of the race. Not a month has passed and you can't get a chirp out of them. What's that, we're liable to be in the same fix in another month?" Fine chance."

Deserve Winner.

BIRMINGHAM fans deserve a winner. Realizing that the staff needed strengthening, a subscription list of $100 was raised, and Pitcher Ray Boyd has been sent to Bonesetter Reese, at Youngstown, for repairs. The Magnolia fanatics deserve success with such spirit. We hope Boyd is returned to them a winning pitcher.

After Vol Hurler.

CINCINNATI is said to have made Nashville a cash offer of several thousand dollars for the immediate delivery of George Beck, the young pitching marvel, whose work to date has been wonderful. Beck has been the hurler in half of the games won by the Vols this season.

Meet Miss Billy Long, 25c Matinee Today 2:30.

Harry Welchonce Is Star In Crackers' Sunday Win; Wallie Sprains His Ankle

Montgomery, Ala., May 11.—(Special.)—Wally Smith was injured in rounding second base on his drive to center field fence this afternoon in the fifth inning. His spikes were caught in the bag and caused him to turn his ankle. He had to hop back to the bag on his right foot, and when the other players reached him he was stretched upon the ground. Billy Smith and Whitey Alpermann practically carried him off the field, though he was attempting to walk. Before the game was over Smith said that his ankle was only slight sprained, but that he would probably have to be out of the game for two or three days.

By B. G. Betty.

Montgomery, Ala., May 11.—(Special.) Atlanta won the last game of the series from Montgomery today and by winning the two clubs broke even on the series, each club winning two games. Price has the honor of having won both games that Montgomery lost.

The game today was full of thrills from the first inning, when Long opened the game by hitting to left field for the circuit.

In the fifth inning Welchonce hit the longest drive ever hit on the Capitol Heights grounds to right field and trotted around the bags for another home run.

Welchonce Stars.

Welchonce featured the game throughout. Every time he came to the bat he got a clean hit, one of them being his home run and another going for two bases and the other two being singles. His fielding was also sensational.

Gribbens got three singles out of as many times to the plate. The spearing with one hand a drive from Bailey's bat by Kutina at first, making an out of what was a sure three-base hit or a home run, and a running shoe string catch of Price's short fly to center field by Breen were the features of the game from a Montgomery viewpoint.

When the game started, Bailey had replaced Rohe in right field for Atlanta and Knaupp had taken Spratt's place on the short field for Montgomery.

Wallie Smith Hurt.

After Smith hit to the center field fence in the fifth and was rounding second base, he caught his spikes in the bag and sprained his ankle. The hit would have been good for three bases but for the accident. It just was possible for him to get back to the bag before the ball had been replayed by two Montgomery players.

Billy Smith and Alpermann assisted the player from the field to the bench and George Rohe took his place on the base and finished the game at the third station.

Atlanta went right after Bagby at the start. After having two strikes on him, Long hit to left field, the ball falling between a clear sign in left field and left field fence. Jantzen couldn't reach the ball, and besides, it would have been a close run anyway for the ball was hidden from the view of either of the umpires.

Agler hit down the right field foul line for three bases. Alpermann hit to Knaupp, who held Agler on third and threw Whitey out at first. Welchonce got his first hit, a two-bagger to left, on which Agler scored. Price hit a long fly to center and Bleland scored, but Dunn wasn't advanced. Dunn was out trying to steal second.

At this stage of the game Dobbs took Bagby out of the box and he was replaced by Snyder.

Agler, first up in the fifth, was given free transportation and stole second, while Alpermann was being struck out. Welchonce then hit to right for a home run, scoring Agler before him. Bailey hit to Kutina, who made a sensational catch and retired the runner.

Smith hit to center for two bases and it was on this hit that he sprained his ankle. Rohe took his place on the bag and scored when Wares and Bisland's roller go through him. Dunn was out on a high foul fly to Elwert. Atlanta could do nothing more with Snyder, but had scored enough runs to get the decision.

Billies' Lone Inning.

Up to the sixth inning Montgomery had only had one player as far as second base, but in this inning, Wares hit to center for one and when Price threw Jantzen's sacrifice hit wide to Agler, both were safe.

Wares took third when Agler made a nice running catch of Elwert's foul fly to the bleachers. Jantzen stole second on a short passed ball and both Wares and Jantzen scored when Price turned loose a wild pitch. Sloan skied out to Welchonce, and Kutina struck out.

After this inning Montgomery didn't have a chance to score, although Gribbens hit to center in the eighth for one and Jantzen beat out a hit to short.

At the end of the eighth, Breitenstein called the game, as it was nearly 5 o'clock and Atlanta had to catch a 5 o'clock train for Memphis, where they open a four-game series tomorrow.

Vols 2, Pels 0.

New Orleans, May 11.—Nashville won the last game of the series with New Orleans today 2 to 0, making three out of four victories for the visitors. McManus was puzzling to the local hitters today. Callahan's hitting was a feature. His two-base drive in the third inning, followed by singles by Lindsay and Daley and an error by Williams, netted the only runs of the very game today. McIntyre, the former major league pitcher, showed good form in his first appearance with the local team.

Turtles 11, Barons 5.

Memphis, Tenn., May 11.—Memphis bats worked the hardest in a game of many hits today and the home team won over Birmingham, 11 to 5. Foxen and Kissinger started pitching for Birmingham and Memphis, respectively, but neither were effective and both were retired early in the game. Kroh succeeded Kissinger and pitched good ball, but Sloan, Birmingham's second pitcher, was hit hard. Birmingham protested the game on a play at the plate in the sixth inning that would have tied the score.

Of the series Memphis won three games and Birmingham one.

Even Break in Mobile.

Mobile, Ala., May 11.—Mobile and Pitcher Hogg's winning streaks were broken this afternoon when Chattanooga won the first game of a double-throw, followed by a single, scored the the second game 9 to 2. Stocks' wild throw, followed by a single scored the only run of the first game.

While Hogg gave up less hits than did Sommers, the visiting pitcher worked a brilliant game and aided in keeping Mobile players off the bases by great fielding. Troy was hammered at will in the second game, while Cavet was a puzzle throughout. An overflow crowd attended.

Hogg had won six games in a row before today's defeat, and Mobile had won eleven games straight.

Chicago, May 11.—Ed Walsh returned to the game today after a long rest and Chicago defeated Philadelphia in the opening game of the series here 4 to 3. The locals won the game by bunching hits after costly errors by McInnis and Baker.

Walsh weakened in the seventh inning and the visitors bunched three hits behind a base on balls and almost tied the score.

The features of the game were McInnis' home run, Strunk's triple and the fielding of Barry and Weaver.

Cleveland, O., May 11.—One of the largest crowds that ever witnessed a ball game here saw Cleveland defeat New York today 7 to 2. This was Frank Chance's first appearance on a Cleveland diamond. Schultz, who started the game for New York, was driven from the box in the first inning when Jackson hit a home run with the bases full. In his other three times at bat Jackson secured a double and two singles.

Klepfer, who succeeded Schultz was effective. This was the sixth consecutive victory for Pitcher Falkenberg, who has not been beaten this season. In the fourth, Falkenberg forced in New York's second run, but struck out the next batter.

Red Sox 5, Tigers 4.

Detroit, May 11.—After tieing the score in the ninth inning Lewis' ball which produced three runs, Boston took a desperate ten inning struggle from Detroit today by a 5 to 4 count. Neal Ball, running for Carrigan, slid home with the deciding run when Hooper bounced an infield hit to Vitt. It was a fast, thrilling, splendidly played game from start to close and the result was in doubt until Speaker brought the game to conclusion by dashing into left center and capturing Crawford's line drive. Loudon was on third and Bush on second when Speaker made the catch.

Boston scored in the first on a wild pitch, and the same inning Lewis doubled Vitt off first after catching Crawford's fly and in the fifth the same fielder doubled Cobb at the plate, by a magnificent throw after capturing High's drive. Three hits helped Detroit produce two runs in the sixth. Another trio of hits gave the locals two more runs in the seventh. Speaker's infield single, a pass to Lewis, Gardner's triple and Engle's fly to Veach enabled the world's champions to gain an even footing in the ninth.

St. Louis, Mo., May 11.—George Baumgardner kept up his Sunday winning by defeating Washington this afternoon 7 to 3. A single, an error, a sacrifice and an error in the first inning netted the visitors a run. A hit batsman, a stolen base and an error in this inning evened it up for the home team.

St. Louis went ahead in the third inning when Schaefer dropped a throw and Williams drove the ball into the stands for a home run. A double, a pass and two singles in the fifth gave Washington two runs and tied the score.

In the eighth inning, after St. Louis scored three runs on a pass, two singles and double, Hughes was relieved by Gallia. St. Louis added one more run on an out and an error.

ABOUT THE LOCALS

(Fuzzy Woodruff, in Montgomery Advertiser.)

Billy Smith's Crackers, who were the beneficiaries of Montgomery's generosity yesterday, scarcely lived up to the reputation of team eaters that was spread broadcast about the southland just a few weeks ago. There is no denying the fact that William has a formidable club. There is no denying the fact that it will be more formidable when Harry Bailey returns with his hit stick to the line-up. There is no denying that his catching staff is fair, that first base is brilliantly played by Agler, that Alpermann has much usefulness left in his ancient corporeal being, that Wally Smith looks decidedly the best third baseman seen in these parts in many a day, that Long and Welchonce and Bailey form a combination hard to beat as an outfield. Bisland didn't look a wonder at short, but he may improve with acquaintance.

But the problem that Smith will have to solve, as the old heads in the league have predicted all along, is to assess a reliable hurling corps. Gilbert Price, who worked yesterday, has been touted as the Crackers' crack. He didn't work a bad game, but he showed no extraordinary stuff, while his control was decidedly poor. Pitchers win pennants and if Atlanta hopes to land on the top rung of the ladder, it is safe to say that William is chewing his tobacco in deep thought every night in planning ways and means of landing a pair of reliable hurlers.

FOOTBALL STAR HERE.

Paul Dickey, Starring in "The Comeback," at the Forsyth.

Paul Dickey, famous as a football player and track star at the University of Michigan, will be in Atlanta this week, as a member of the headliner act in the bill at the Forsyth theater.

"The Comeback," in which he appears in the hero role, is a college sketch, with a football game as the principal theme.

Mr. Dickey played end on the Michigan eleven in 1907 and 1908 and was chosen on an All-Western and All-American eleven in both years.

During his stay in the city, Mr. Dickey will be entertained by the Michigan alumni in the city and fraternates.

Oh, What's the Use!

"Viper!" she hissed. "Fool! Scoundrel! Wretch! Blackguard! Fool!"

Smiling sweetly he rolled a cigarette and applied a light.

"William!" she resumed, her eyes flashing vivid fire. "Robber-r-r!"

"Go on," he suggested, puffing at his cigarette. "Go on."

Then a thought suddenly occurred to her and she sank hopelessly into a chair at the uselessness of it all. He had been a baseball umpire!

The managers of the two leagues will meet at the College Co-Op store Wednesday and arrange for a championship series of games to be played on the Marist college grounds, May 15, 16 and 21, between the winners in each league.

A series of games will also be arranged between the second place winners in the two leagues, to be played on the same dates, these games being seven innings each, and played just before the championship games.

ATLANTAN SUCCEEDS AMERICUS MANAGER

Hal Griffin Given Temporary Charge of Empire State League Club.

Americus, Ga., May 11.—(Special.)—The Americus ball team left this afternoon for Waycress in charge of First Baseman Hal Griffin as temporary manager. Thoroughly tired of continued defeat sustained by the Americus aggregation, the directors met this morning and relieved Manager Harry Weber of that office, temporarily at least, putting Griffin in charge.

Americus has lost seven of the nine games played already, and while Manager Weber ascribes defeat to bad luck, ball fans are less charitably inclined. It is generally suspected here that the salary limit rule is not being observed by all of the clubs of the league, and as Americus is living within the salary limits she is placed at disadvantage in employment of proficient players.

Ill luck of the Americus team recently has caused interest in baseball to flag perceptibly, although a winning streak would quickly restore enthusiasm.

Four Motorcycle Riders Arrive for Local Meet; Will Practice Friday

Four of the speed merchants who will compete on Jack Prince's motorcycle track on the old circus grounds arrived in the city Sunday and were on the roads around Atlanta all during the day, tuning up their racing machines.

The one-quarter-mile saucer will be in readiness for them to practice on by Friday. Mr. Prince announced last night that he would have the track proper completed by that time and would then start work on the seating.

Most of the famous motorcycle riders of this country will be in Atlanta for the race meet, and some fine sport is promised. Records are also sure to go glimmering.

Mr. Prince estimates that the riders will average 90 miles an hour on the saucer.

Turtle Soup Is Menu Today for Crackers; King Brady Pitches

Turtle soup will be the menu on today's baseball bill of fare and for the next three days thereafter.

Billy Smith's Crackers open up a four-game series with Bill Bernhard's Turtles this afternoon at Red Elm, the first meeting between the two teams this season.

King Brady will probably be Billy Smith's selection for hurling duty in the opening game and if "old reliable" is right, count another contest on the right side of the ledger.

Rube Kissinger will no doubt be the hurling selection of Boss Bernhard. The big right hander can twirl some himself and it ought to be a pitchers' duel.

Harry Bailey will be in the line-up, which will give the Crackers their complete strength for the first time since the trip started.

The present road trip will be brought to a close in New Orleans, games being scheduled for Pelham-ville Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Next Monday, the locals open up a home stay of thirteen games, playing Memphis, Mobile, New Orleans and Montgomery in that order, four games being scheduled with the last-named team, three with the others.

Pelham 11, Camilla 7.

Pelham, Ga., May 11.—(Special.)—Pelham and Camilla played the first game of the season here yesterday, the locals winning, 11 to 7.

Camilla started off in a rush, doing their best hitting in the first inning, coupled with a base on balls and a hit batsman, which netted them three runs. They never scored again until the fifth inning, a base on balls, an error at third and a short hit over short filling the bases. A hit and a wild pitch netted them four runs. After that they never saw the plate.

Score by innings:	R. H. E.
Camilla	300 040 000— 7 6 5
Pelham	031 000 02x—11 13 3

Batteries—Roles, Mayo and Adams, Camilla; Rogers and Spence, Pelham.

United States Embassies Abroad

In every little red schoolhouse the story is told that there is no office within the gift of his countrymen to which Young America may not aspire and which he may not attain., but let him at maturity seek a post in the diplomatic service of his country, and he will find that the first requisite is a fortune, that without it he cannot serve his country abroad, and that these honorable positions are filled only by the aristocrats of wealth. Under the American system of diplomacy none but millionaires, or near millionaires, ready to sacrifice their private incomes, need apply.

To say that American diplomatic positions are not well filled because they are filled by men of wealth, is not to state the case either fairly or well, for almost without exception each administration has been able to find men of ability with fat purses to accept these honors and practically pay their own expenses. But no administration ever has been able to find or ever will be able, under the present system, to select men of distinction, integrity and particularly suited to represent the United States at any of the larger foreign capitals, where it is especially desired that such men should be sent. No one who must depend entirely, or almost entirely, upon his salary as an ambassador or a minister can afford to enter the diplomatic service of the United States.—From Norman E. Mack's National Monthly.

SOME DEMOCRATIC SENATORS WHO BALK AT REVISION

A canvass of the senate by democratic members of the finance committee shows that the democratic senators will not support the wool and sugar provisions of the house tariff bill, even when the main battle will be waged. Two of these are Ransdell and Thornton, of Louisiana, who are out and out opponents of free sugar. The other three are believed to be Ashurst, of Arizona; Newlands, of Nevada, and Walsh, of Montana. Shafroth, of Colorado, despite the fact that his election was opposed by sugar interests, is thought likely to join the group. Senator Poindexter, of Washington, the only progressive, was expected by democratic leaders to vote for all provisions of the tariff bill except possibly four relating to sugar. It is now thought, however, that he cannot be counted on to vote for the bill as a whole. If the democratic defection in the senate runs as high as five the success of the tariff bill will be jeopardized. There are fifty-one democrats. forty-four republicans and one progressive in the senate, thus giving the democrats a majority of six. A change of three democratic votes would prevent the party leaders from maintaining this majority, provided they do not receive some support from the progressive republicans.

Tech and Georgia Resume Hostilities Here Friday; Both to Practice Hard

Coach Heiman's victorious Tech Yellow Jackets are not going to be caught asleep or be over-confident after their two victories over their old rivals, the University of Georgia in Athens.

They will go right to work this afternoon at Grant field and practice every night until dusk to be in readiness for the Georgia boys when they come to Atlanta Friday and Saturday to play the return battles.

Tech will work hard to take at least one of these games and thus capture the series. Heisman has several tricks up his sleeve that he promises to drill into his men this week and spring on the Red and Black, a new plan of attack that will take them by surprise.

Reports from Athens are to the effect that Georgia, stung by two defeats in her own ball yard, administered by their most hated rivals, have gritted their teeth, and are out for vengeance.

Alex Cunningham is sure to put the bunch through the most strenuous four days of practice beginning today that a Red and Black nine has ever held.

Alumni will flock to Athens to lend their aid to the team and urge them to greater deeds.

The two Tech victories were a surprise to even the most ardent admirers of the school. The team when it left for the game was confident of winning the first battle, and when they did, they fought the Red and Black to a standstill in the second attack.

Eubanks and Corley will resume their pitching duel again this Friday at Grant field, with Morris and Pitts facing each other on Saturday.

Dahlen's Dodgers Surprise In National League Race; Athletics Using 'Big Stick'

New York, May 11.—Followers of major league baseball, particularly those chiefly interested in the National league situation, have been treated to a series of thrills during the past week. These must have been pleasurable if their sympathies lay with the Brooklyns, whose surprising rise of the week before was followed with a spurt which took them from fourth place to second; or the reverse if one's hopes were fixed on the Pittsburgs, whose remarkable slump was accelerated with a jolt downward to within a few points of the Bostons, who profited chiefly by the Pirates' fall.

The sensation of the week in the American league was furnished by the New Yorks. Chance's erratic band, after having been maltreated consistently by the eastern clubs, jumped west and in the bracing air of Detroit reeled off three victories out of four starts, winning more games in one series than they had all season before.

Phillies Still Going.

A glance at the National league situation as a whole shows Philadelphia, although fought to a standstill by St. Louis in the recent series, still going at a speedy clip and showing no signs of collapse. The Brooklyns are going strongly for the lead, however, and the coming week may witness a shift.

If Chicago has lost "the edge" it traditionally has had on New York when the two teams met, their first clash of this season gave no evidence of it. There is something sadly amiss with the McGraw combination. Instead of "getting the jump" on the other teams by entering the race highly conditioned and cantering away, the New Yorks, after more than a month of play find themselves a bad fifth in the pennant struggle. There are apparently few, however, who expect the team's slump to continue much longer.

The St. Louis pitchers are holding Hoagtin's team well up in the race. Cincinnati's main trouble is weakness in this respect. On the other hand, the Boston twirlers are delivering well just now for Stallings.

American league conditions show fewer changes than the National. No one seems able to stop the Athletics to any appreciable extent. This is one of the few clubs that has run true to pre-season prediction. Washington may be said to be another. The week's play as a whole found that team about holding its own.

Chicago and St. Louis also played on even terms during the week each club dropping three and winning two. St. Louis is better placed in the race than it has been generally expected but the Red Sox are close behind.

In Detroit Hugh Jennings has a problem on his hands that may be more difficult to solve than Frank Chance's with New York. Box weakness is the Tigers' main complaint, although the infield problem is worrying him as it is Chance. Obviously Jennings could use Hal Chase. It may be taken for granted that it will take a decidedly good offer to separate Chance from the New Yorks' leader, even if Chase is in the throes of a pronounced playing slump just at this time.

SCIENTIST MURDERED BY UNFAITHFUL WIFE

Posen, Germany, May 11.—Frau Blume, charged with the murder of her husband under sensational circumstances last August, was found guilty today of homicide after extenuating circumstances. She was sentenced to four years' imprisonment. An indignant crowd expressed its disapproval of the leniency of the sentence by a riotous demonstration outside the court.

Professor Blume, an eminent scientist, was found shot to death in a wood near Posen. He had been married only six months. It was at first supposed that his death was due to an accident. Then suspicion fell on his wife, a young and beautiful woman who finally confessed to having murdered him. She wished to regain possession of a written acknowledgement to her husband of her guilty relations with a prominent physician of Posen.

HORRORS OF SING SING BEYOND DESCRIPTION

Investigator Describes Conditions as Frightful—Prisoners Tortured and Robbed.

Albany, N. Y., May 11.—"Stories of torture of prisoners in the middle ages sound like descriptions of luxuries in comparison to the tales that have been told me of the lives that some of the prisoners in Sing Sing live."

This striking indictment of conditions alleged to exist within New York state's oldest penal institution is contained in a report of an investigation of the prison made by George W. Blake, a special commissioner appointed by Governor Sulzer to probe prison affairs.

The investigator describes conditions as "frightful." The prison cells, he says, are dark, small, damp, filthy and infested with vermin. In them men contract rheumatism and go out crippled for life. Into none of the cells on the lower tiers has a ray of sunshine entered for eight years.

Certain prisoners, Mr. Blake asserts, through political influence or by the payment of money, receive favors. His has evidence, he says, showing that because of influence, exerted by men well known in various walks of life, money has been wrung from persons seeking clemency for prisoners.

"The commissary department of the prison," he says, "is run along incompetent, if not dishonest, lines. There is criminal carelessness, if not downright grafting."

Mr. Blake charges that Colonel Joseph F. Scott, who was removed recently as superintendent of state prisons, was aware of the existence of certain of these conditions, but made no effort to see as the investigator was able to learn to minimize them.

John S. Kennedy, warden at Sing Sing, is charged by Mr. Blake with having violated the law. "He has permitted the creation and continuance of unbusinesslike methods," says the report, "and has caused the state to lose thousands of dollars in a way that points directly to graft. He has made no attempt to protect inmates from disease and vice, nor any effort to produce better conditions in this prison."

"The worst feature of the prison management cannot be discussed in any public document," says the report, "but the subject is of such vital importance to the welfare of the state that no time should be lost in submitting it to the attention of men competent to present a method of betering a condition that breeds disease of the mind and body and that should touch the hearts of every man with any human instincts."

Not Entirely.

Have you lived here all your life" asked a drummer of a lean, lantern-jawed Tennessee mountaineer, who stood idly leaning against a rail fence.

The mountaineer shifted his weight from one foot to the otner and replied:

"Not yit."—From Norman E. Mack's National Monthly.

SCIATICA

Eminent doctors and specialists agree that SULFOSOL—soluble sulphur—is a dependable remedy in rheumatic conditions or predisposition to rheumatism. In its truly soluble form, known as Sulfosol, sulphur is readily received into the blood, is quickly assimilated and manifests its greatest effectiveness in expelling uric acid from the system, and overcoming not only Sciatica, Rheumatism and Gout, but all blood and skin troubles. SULFOSOL is therefore the logical and efficient solvent and eradicator of blood taints.

SULFOSOL is the great vitaliser of the blood, expeller of uric acid and other blood taints and conqueror of Gout and Rheumatism. . Get it of your nearest druggist or write to the Sulfosol Company, 218 Washington St., New York, for a free book on Gout, Rheumatism and Blood Diseases and the successful use of SULFOSOL in their treatment.

Watering Plants and Garden Crops.

Next after the soil itself water is by all odds the most indispensable factor in the growth of plants and the making of crops. Indeed, most of the work of preparation and cultivation, and the addition of suitable manure and of other forms of decayed vegetable matter (humus) are for the purpose of conserving moisture. On comparatively poor land fairly good crops may be secured, provided only that there be sufficient moisture for the needs of the plants at all times during the growing period. With the more or less liberal application of soluble and readily available plant food in the form of fertilizers, good growth and good yields may be secured even on the poorest soils, provided only that a plentiful supply of water be always within easy reach of the plant roots.

This is well enough understood by the average farmer and gardener, but it is not so well understood why a poor soil should require more frequent and liberal rainfalls than does rich soil. It is not because the crops growing on the poor soil need any more moisture than do those planted on rich soil, but because the poor soil does not retain as much of the water that falls on it as does the other. The poor soil "runs together," or packs, under the influence of a downpour of rain, and will not take up and hold the water, a large portion running off, and often carrying the soil with it, while the soil that contains a good quantity of humus and has been well plowed and harrowed and frequently stirred so as to keep the surface an inch or so in a state of divided and porous condition, will hold on to the water instead of permitting it to run off or to evaporate.

Water in the Garden.

No garden—whether for flowers or for vegetables—should be without an artificial supply of this indispensable so as to keep the surface inch or so abundant and timely that any other source may be for the time, and possibly for the entire season, altogether unnecessary. It is rare, indeed, however, that there occurs a year, or a single season, when there is not a shortage of rainwater. When such a shortage occurs the crop needs it, and needs it badly. It often happens that a particular crop—Irish potatoes, for example—will be ruined by a drouth of ten or fifteen days. At such times victory is—not "my kingdom for a horse," but—"oh, for a rain." "I'd give a dollar a minute for a good shower of rain." And well and truly might the farmer or the gardener so exclaim. A good crop of Irish potatoes means from 200 to 300 bushels of potatoes from an acre. A failure because of the fateful rainfall at the critical time may mean only 50 to 100 bushels from the same acre. And 50 bushels is 200 bushels be worth in market? Say from $100 to $125. Increase the one figure to 200 and you have doubled the unfavorable year a few times and in many cases the sumtotal of losses would be more than sufficient to aggurate a more or less complete and extensive system of water supply on the farm, which in any one of the states, to say nothing of the great nature of comfort and convenience to the household, would have plenty of water at all times for clothes washing, cooking, bathing, etc.

City Supply for City Gardeners.

Even in cities and towns having public waterworks, and many small kitchen and flower garden resort may be profitably had to this source of supply, oftentimes resulting in saving a crop of some particular vegetable or flower plant if applied at the critical junctures, when the most needed. The water usually sells at from 70 to 15 cents per thousand gallons—under a pressure of 60 to 100 pounds per square inch, and the fact of being under pressure practically doubles its economic value. It is, therefore, a good complat to be saved from utter failure by the application of 25 to 50 cents worth (or less) of water at the critical moment.

How to Water.

Most non-residents in garden suburbs who have a few pots or small plots of flowers or vegetables, make a mistake of sprinkling frequently but insufficiently. They may apply a little water—enough to moisten the surface of the soil look wet—every day or every other day. The effect of this mode of watering is to encourage the small quantity of water applied to the sun and air to be evaporated in a few hours. The correct way is to apply one inch of water at one time and not so often. Flower pots should not be full of soil, but should have a space of one inch filled with the life-sustaining fluid—say twice a week. Vegetables and flower plants are without water from the clouds. It is true, however, that pot plants require more water than garden plots on the ground surface do not require artificial supply.

One Inch of Water is a Good Season.

A quantity of water that would stand would be what we call a "full season," inch in depth on a level surface under ordinary conditions. One inch of rainfall, therefore, is enough at any one time, unless it be very heavy and comes slowly.

Don't Puddle the Soil.

It is best not to apply water too heavily to a given small area. When it commences to run off the surface on the surface the stream shoul. be directed elsewhere for a time, and then returned. Generally speaking, as much as a less time than 15 or 20 minutes.

If I wished to apply one inch of water per acre (10 gallons per square foot) I would prefer to apply half the quantity in one late afternoon and the remainder next afternoon. Applying with a hose to the surface is the preferred method when time and water are plentiful and cheap, but furrow irrigation is much cheaper, requiring less time and less water. The lay of the land, however, must be taken into consideration in determining the method of applying the water.

I will only add that whatever be the method employed, it is very important that the soil be thoroughly stirred as soon as irrigating may be done without injury to its physical condition.

SICK COW.

S. P. Pruitt, Bell Ground, Ga.—I have a cow that was sick about a month ago. One side of her neck swelled to a large knot. I put iodine and some other medicine on it, but it did not better, but the knot is still there. Could you tell me anything to do for it to make it off? She has lame now; the lameness seems to be in her hind legs. She cannot get up very easily. She has been this way for several days, but today she is still off all over and can hardly walk.

Answer—I am not able to say—from the description you give of the symptoms, and of the nature of the "large knot" and to exact location—what is the matter with your cow. You will be more likely to get practical results from injecting some tincture of iodine. Not being able to determine what is the ailment from to which she is suffering, I am not prepared to prescribe for her.

SMUTTY OATS AS HORSE FEED.

R. L. Grayson, Moselle, Miss.—First, My oats are heading out and at least 10 per cent. are smut heads. Is there any danger feeding such oats to horses, calves and hogs? If I sow oats on the same land next year, will they have a predisposition to smut again, even if treated with Formalin? Second, I have a fine prospect for early tomatoes on new land, which I am pruning and training to stakes. What spray should I use to prevent them from rotting? Last year the leaves of my tomatoes would curl up just about the time they began to set fruit. Can I prevent that by spraying? I will greatly appreciate your advice on the above.

Answer—(1) So far as I know there is no danger from feeding smutted oats to animals. Usually one more shower of rainfall on the oats before harvest and the smut spores are practically washed away thereby. If you sow even treated (formalin) seed oats on same land you will be likely to have more or less smut, but not so much as if the seed were not treated with either formalin, lysol solutions or hot water. Knowing, as you do, about the formalin treatment to prevent smut, I am surprised that you did not treat your seed oats last fall—so simple and inexpensive, and at the same time so effective a preventative. (2) I have never found spraying with bordeaux mixture to be absolutely effective in preventing leaf curl (blight) of tomatoes; yet the experts recommend it. To be effective, they say, the first application should be before the plants bloom. The strength recommended is 4—4—50. Near ground is much less likely to develop this blight.

SECOND CROP IRISH POTATOES.

W. F. Andrews, Arlington, Ga.—Would it be wise to plant a second crop of Irish potatoes in July or August from the seed that I raise this spring? If so, will the small ones that are not large enough to put on the market do for this purpose, and how shall I manage them so that they will make good seed? I have the Cobless and Bliss Triumph. I want to plant one acre or more. I am a beginner in the truck business.

Answer—Second crop Irish potatoes, according to the experience of most persons who have tried the experiment, is a very uncertain proposition, although some growers claim that they realize handsome profits from success in securing a crop. I note, however, that some of these growers admit that it is almost impossible to succeed if reliance be had on the spring-grown crop. I have never been able to get these to come up with sufficient promptness and uniformity to secure satisfactory stands. The truth is that the question is one of using old, mature seed and plenty of moisture. Truckers near the seacoast say they find no difficulty on two score of moisture in securing stands of fall rains are much more plentiful than they are further inland. The Lookout mountain potato seems better adapted for late summer or second crop planting than any other, using only seed that may be harvested in the fall. I advise you to get seed of them if you insist on trying your hand.

ECZEMA OF HORSE.

George H. Giles, Lafayette, Ala.—I have a horse that is sound, except he is troubled with an itch which broke out on him last spring, and the trouble was severe at the start, but what I could get on him did no good. I've used on him a wash of water and carbolic acid. Then I tried a wash of water and castile soap. I have given him sulphur to eat in bran once a week for a short while and nothing seems to help him any good. What you please give me a remedy for him that I may cure him? I don't know what he has had this itch, for I've had him only three years, but he didn't break out the first year I bought him, but the third year, and he is being plagued so much with this itch.

Answer—Your horse probably has a form of eczema, of which one characteristic is that it is apt to return again and again, and is usually attended with severe itching. Nearly every month I give prescriptions for this ailment in one letter, from early spring to early summer. You will find such a letter and reply in the issue of May 4, 1913, date of my letter. Please refer to it under the head of "Eczema of Mule," in reply to J. J. Bradford, Pelham, Ga.

TEN OR FIFTEEN REMEDIES—BOTS (OR GRUBS.)

A. J. McLeod, Milan, Ga.—I have a mule that was taken bad Saturday night, and like to have died. We sat up all night and drenched her with ten or fifteen different remedies—Dead Shot, Penetrading, oil, etc., and nothing did any good. About 1 o'clock Sunday p. m. we drenched her with syrup and sweet milk, and she soon got better, and I think it must have been grubs. Will you kindly name me a remedy for same. She rubs her hide very much, and from her head and neck it is swollen.

Answer—You should have addressed your letter to "R. J. Redding, Editor of the Farm department, Griffin, Ga., in order to insure prompt attention.

I have not been able to determine what was the matter with your mule, as you do not describe a single symptom. You say you think "it must have been grubs," by which I presume you mean bots, and you ask for a remedy for same. In reply I will say that I presume it was a case of ordinary colic, and, further, that "grubs," as you term them, were rarely ever the symptoms that would indicate their presence. As a fact, they rarely cause any inconvenience, and only when they clog the rectum, whence they may be dislodged by inflating the rectum with tobacco tea. If the mule did not pass the grubs you may be sure that they were not the cause of the attack. Of course, I cannot say what the trouble was, since you do not describe any symptoms.

The surprising thing was that the mule withstood the heroic treatment—"ten or fifteen different remedies"—that you administered to her.

TOP-DRESSING ONIONS.

A. R. Kline, Menlrrie, Ga.—I have about an acre planted in bermuda onions. I have fertilized this with nine one-horse loads of stable manure, five sacks of 9-2-2 guano and three sacks of kainit. I am contemplating putting about two hundred pounds of nitrate of soda on this. These onions are now about one-third grown and are doing well. Please advise me what you think of the application of nitrate of soda. What would you advise to fertilize with now?

Answer—The 9 one-horse loads of stable manure and 1000 lbs. of 9-2-2 guano and three sacks of kainit was a fairly good application to the acre, if it went, but was rather deficient in nitrogen, and I think you should by all means add about 100 pounds of nitrate to the acre, which I think would be sufficient. An 8-4-4 compound is about what an onion crop demands. If the ground was already pretty rich in 1000 lbs. of 8-4-4 to the acre. (2) kainit was a fairly liberal dose of supplemented, with a top-dressing of 100 lbs. nitrate, or 75 lbs. sulphate of ammonia. But if it was ordinary soil, 50 per cent more would not have been amiss.

PIG FEED FOR RAPID GROWTH.

Reader, Jonesboro, Ga.—Two questions: (1) In your opinion, what is best to feed a pig 5 or 6 months old to make him grow fast. I mean commercial feeds, regardless of price?

(2) Where and from whom may I obtain tankage?

(3) Which is best for hogs, tankage or shorts?

Answer—(1) The best feeds to induce rapid and healthful growth of pigs after weaning is ground oats, cowpeas mixed with bran, wheat middlings, shorts, buttermilk or skimmed milk. Good pasture is almost indispensable, and nothing probably is better than clover. Alfalfa meal is also excellent, as well as the green alfalfa.

(2) Tankage is mostly used as an ingredient of a fertilizer, but is becoming used to some extent as a feed for animals. I do not know from experience how it compares with shorts, but probably not altogether so good.

Tariff Pledges.

The dividing line between the positions of the democratic party and the republican party upon the question of the tariff is very clearly and easily ascertained in theory. So far as has been discovered, no one is yet able to define the policy of the new progressive party, so that its position need not be taken into account and more especially since there is no third side to a dividing line. Where the tariff rates balance the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad, including an allowance for the added cost of transportation from foreign countries to the United States, the tariff must be competitive, and from that point down to the lowest duty that can be levied will continue to be competitive to a greater or less extent. Where competition is not interfered with by levying the tax above the highest competitive point, the profits of the domestic producer are not protected. On the other hand, when the duties levied at the custom house are high enough to allow the American producer to make a profit before his competition can enter the field, there is an invasion of the domain of the protection of profits. It follows, then, and this is the democratic position, that the protection of any profit must of necessity have a tendency to destroy healthful, natural competition, and to create monopoly, whether the profit thus protected be a reasonable or unreasonable profit.

Democratic Women.

(From Norman H. Mack's National Monthly.)

When President Wilson and his family moved into the White House on the afternoon of March 4, society about made up its mind that there must necessarily be a social revolution, a weather, reorganization, in sight. Surely, after having been successfully opposed by the democratic party for sixteen years it seemed that one of the celebrations of the democratic victory as the polls must be to begin at once turning things upside down. Many predictions were made before and after the inauguration that the Wilsons and Mrs. Wilson contemplated making many changes in the social program which had prevailed during the last four years. In fact, if all reports were to have been believed, the Wilson family had no other thought in mind than to see just how much of a stir they were capable of causing among members of society at the capital. Days and weeks finally went by, and society finally quit holding its breath that it might watch the punctures dissipate every bubble of rumor that had been blown up. The fact is that Mr. and Mrs. Wilson have caught up the official and social lines that were already strung when the new administration came into power, and things have been moving so evenly ever since that it is really hard to believe, in many ways that an important event in the history of the country has occurred with the transition to power of a dominant political party after years of struggle. True, there is a new occupant in the executive office and the chambers of the national legislature, but so far as anybody is able to see, there has been no material change in the basis of social life at the capital.

An Opinion on Hosiery.

A pump little woman stood beside a counter in a big store where "bargains in ladies' hose" were on sale. She selected a pair and held it toward the small boy who was assisting the saleslades, saying:

"I'll take six pairs like this."

The boy put down the hose to the lady and coolly drawled:

"I wouldn't if I were you; cheap hosiery is never elastic at the top."

—From Norman E. Mack's National Monthly.

Answered Correctly.

"And now, Mrs. Sullivan," said Lawyer Thompson, "will you be kind enough to tell the jury whether your husband was in the habit of striking you with impunity?"

Democratic Women.

The marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Tumulty was finally culminated of a school days romance, although unlike most so-called romances. They practically grew up together, but it was not until both had been graduated from their respective schools that they met again. Tumulty was a student at St. Aloysius school in Jersey City, and Mr. Tumulty attended a near-by institution. They saw each other every day, passed on the street, both to and from school, but were introduced by one of those curious freaks of fate they were not thrown together. Mrs. Tumulty tells with much interest and amusement how she and some of her friends were unable to determine which of the debates by the boys at the college and hall they voted Mr. Tumulty one of the best. She says: "I must have been a girl, she little dreamed that they would be married, or that he would find his real career in politics." Mr. Tumulty's appointment to one of the most important official positions in the country.

Before her marriage Miss Tumulty was Miss Mary Byrne, daughter of one of the most noted contractors and builders in the state of New Jersey. Mr. Byrne, whose specialty was the construction of buildings of strong and educational institutions. For twenty years or more Mr. Tumulty made his home with his father in a charming house in Jersey City, which had been established by his parents. They gave up this home, sold house and furnishings, to go to Washington.

Mr. Tumulty has with her her two sisters, who have always lived with Mr. and Mrs. Tumulty. They have been thoroughly enjoying motor drives in and around Washington, Rock Creek park within its miles of picturesque roads being only a short distance from their own home.

CHIEF'S LIFE IN DANGER.

Newport Lanford Nearly Run Down by Negro Coachman.

Chief of Detectives Lanford narrowly escaped death last night under the wheels of a heavy two-horse carriage, driven by Charlie Smith, a negro coachman. The chief managed to get from under the horses' heels only after exerting the utmost agility, and, as it was, his hat was brushed off by the shafts of the carriage.

He was walking on East Hill street, toward the Bell street, viaduct with John Murphy, the negro janitor at the city hall, when they suddenly heard the thunder of hoofs just behind them. Jumping to the left, they found that they were unable to get out of the way, because of the trees along the street, and had to cower in front of the horses again to escape.

They called to the negro to stop, but, without heeding them, he drove madly down the street. They gave chase and finally caught and arrested him. He refused to give any explanation of his actions.

JAKE WELLS WILL AID ELKS' NEW ORGAN FUND

Jake Wells, the head of the Wells circuit, and one of the most prominent southern men in theatricals, spent Sunday in Atlanta, travelling from a tour over the southern part of the circuit, back to his New York headquarters with a stopover in Richmond.

New theaters to become members of the circuit are being erected in Birmingham and in Richmond, and Mr. Wells desired to note progress on the Birmingham house before setting down to the task of booking the routes for the season that will commence early in August. While here he inspected the four Wells theaters and gave directions concerning improvements and general details as to present and future operations.

He would not say what would be the future of the Grand, except that he had no idea at present of releasing the hold he has on that theater. The magnate would not say whether vaudeville of the Keith sort would be continued at the Forsyth indefinitely, except that the people seemed to be thoroughly pleased with the change and that he believed a good deal in letting well enough alone.

It is possible that a stock company of exceptional quality will be put in the Lyric within a few weeks, and also that there may be a change in the policy of the Bijou that will be a pleasant surprise. Mr. Wells also authorized his local representatives to tender a night at the Forsyth to the local Elks for cash to help on the lodge's new organ fund. It is proposed to turn the theater over some one night at cost, and let the Elks have the entire receipts above the cost figure.

POLITICIAN ARRESTED IN SPECTACULAR RAID

Chicago, May 11.—Barney Bertache, politician and former convict, accused by State's Attorney Hoyne of having arranged protection to a ring of pickpockets, safe blowers and wire tappers, was arrested in a spectacular raid early this morning and was released on bonds tonight. Bertache was booked on a charge of conspiracy after detectives had beaten down the door of his home and overpowered him.

The charge of conspiracy arose in the case of Mrs. Hope L. McEldowney, of Milwaukee, who alleged she had been swindled out of $15,500 by Frank Ryan, charged with being a member of the so-called clairvoyant trust. Bertache's name appeared as indorser of the bond given Ryan by the MHwaukee woman.

The state's attorney charges that Bertache arranged for the importation of a ring of confidence men on the claim that he could extend protection to them. Numerous crooks and politicians as well as some members of the police department are involved in the conspiracy, according to the state's attorney.

REAL ESTATE AS AN INVESTMENT
THERE IS NONE BETTER. Stocks may go up or down. The oil wells may run dry. The mine may be a hole in the ground, with the ore existing in someone's imagination only. The stock in the new aeroplane company may look pretty, but will the machine fly?
The man who puts his money into real estate is safe. And he is certain of returns. He is free, too. He can go to bed secure in the knowledge that the earth will be there when he wakes next day. If any portion of his investment be represented by buildings, his insurance protects him.
A sensible investor in real estate puts his money in home ground, where he can watch his investment and make the most of it. There are more fortunes being made in Atlanta real estate than the most brilliant dreamer could picture. Anyone with funds to invest can make no better disposition of them than to invest them in carefully selected real estate here in the Capital City. Few of America's cities offer so flattering a future as Atlanta. Canny investors realize this, and are buying Atlanta ground NOW. In these columns you will find the latest and best offers in real estate every day. READ.

HUERTA OFFICERS KILLED BY REBELS

Twenty-Five Men, Taken in Fighting Near Guaymas, Executed—Rebels Are Cutting the Railway Lines.

Nogales, Ariz., May 11.—Twenty-five federal officers, including an infantry and artillery colonel, taken prisoners during last week's fighting above Guaymas, were shot at a public execution by order of the constitutionalist commanders. The execution is admitted officially by state authorities at Hermosillo.

The official statement also admits the loss in killed of 200 state troops during the three days' fighting, which resulted during last night in the driving of the retiring federals into the first station north of the gulf port town. Fighting at this last stand continued today.

The reported deaths of Chief Bulo, commander of the insurgent Yaqui Indians, and of Colonel Guitierez, of the state troops, was announced as confirmed in the report.

REBELS CUT RAILWAY LINES AND HAMPER HUERTA FORCES

Mexico City, May 11.—What may become for the government a more awkward situation than that caused last week by rebel successes in the north was the cutting today of the railroad from Tampico to San Luis Potosi. Over this route all the fuel oil used by locomotives is moved, and it will now be necessary to ship from Tampico to Monterey.

The Tampico-Monterey line has been cut repeatedly, and has often been temporarily repaired. If this is cut again and the rebels prevent repairs between Tampico and San Luis Potosi, it will be necessary to use the Gulf coast ports as a makeshift. The oil on hand is sufficient for only two or three days. Any condition that would prevent a further supply would result in the practical suspension of transportation.

The last week has shown little if any improvement in the situation for the government. Conscription have continued; more troops have been mobilized in the north and in the state of Morelos, but they have not yet been able to do anything but act on the defensive, except in a few instances. The regions are overrun by rebels, and the towns occupied are so widely separated and so numerous as to make specification difficult.

The Zapata forces are active and do not hesitate to take the initiative in attack. The Zacatecas garrison was reinforced today by Pascual Orozco, Jr., with 200 men. Torreon has been isolated. General Pellaez, in command of the operations around Monterey, has made only questionable gains.

The government does not admit reverses in Sonora or at Reynosa, near Matamoros.

RESIDENTS OF PARRAL FLEE WITH THE HUERTA GARRISON

El Paso, Texas, May 11.—Riding everything from burros to bicycles, 300 residents of Parral are moving with the federal garrison of the Chihuahua mining town, peace fully occupied last week by constitutionalist forces. From Parral to Chihuahua City is a march of 200 miles. The trip will require a week. Most of the refugees are residents who had declared themselves against the revolution, thus endangering their safety when the 1,200 federal troops were withdrawn.

It is thought a battle will result before the arrival of the refugees at the state capital. Already rumors have come back of fighting in which groups of insurgents have begun to harass the retreating federal column preliminary to an actual attack. A large portion of the column is of infantry, necessitating slow progress, while the insurgents all are mounted.

General Antonio Rabago, military governor and commander of the northern military zone at Chihuahua City, declares that the Parral garrison will augment that at the state capital, not more than 500 men, while another strong column moving south from Torreon will retake Parral.

REBELS MARCH ON MATAMORAS; REGULARS ARE IN FLIGHT

Brownsville, Texas, May 11.—Rebels, victorious in yesterday's battle at Reynosa, are reported marching on Matamoras, across the boundary from Brownsville, tonight, and in anticipation of an attack on that city 5,000 residents have taken refuge in Brownsville. Public records have also been moved across the boundary.

Major Ramos, federal commander at Matamoras, promises vigorous resistance to the advancing rebels. Trenches were dug about Matamoras today. He has three hundred men and four machine guns at his command, and General Blanco, with 100 men, is reported hurrying to his assistance. Efforts to ascertain the whereabouts of Blanco tonight, however, were without result. One report has it that he is a short distance south of Reynosa.

According to reports received today, 23 participants in yesterday's fight were killed and sixty or more wounded. Eight federal soldiers were drowned while trying to swim across the Rio Grande into the United States. Twenty-one federals succeeded in crossing the river. They were relieved of their arms and will be sent back to the Mexican side of the boundary. Two who reached Brownsville today were deported to Matamoras.

The rebels, seven hundred strong, were reported at Rio Bravo this morning. Reinforcements were expected to join them at that point.

Amado Stevens, an American who was pressed into service by rebels at San Fernanado, was released after the battle at Reynosa. He came to Brownsville today.

Telegraphic communication between Matamoras and Monterey has been cut.

SOCIALISTS TO PROBE WEST VIRGINIA STRIKE

Chicago, May 11.—Victor L. Berger, former socialist member of congress from Milwaukee; Eugene V. Debbs, socialist candidate for president, and Adolph Germer, of Illinois, today were appointed a committee of the socialist party to investigate the conditions of miners in West Virginia and to make a personal report to President Wilson. The committee was named at a meeting of the national committee of the socialist party. The committee also addressed a memorial to President Wilson, declaring that a reign of terror exists in West Virginia, and asking an investigation by the department of justice.

The committees of the national committee for the coming year were named.

At the Washington Horse Show

Following the third annual national capital horse show, Washington society planned other spring activities, including many receptions to members of the new administration. Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, wife of the vice president, who was an interested visitor at the horse show, and is shown in the illustration seated in a box with Mrs. Thomas Walsh, is one of the most active of the new social leaders there. Another is Mrs. Mahlon Pitney, wife of the new United States supreme court justice, who was snapped at the horse show with her little daughter. The Italian ambassador issued invitations to three large dinner parties May 13. It was planned to have the company composed largely of young people to meet the Misses Wilson. On May 15 the guest of honor will be the ambassador from Austria-Hungary, and on May 17 the company will be in honor of the secretary of state and Mrs. Bryan.

FATE OF THE TITANIC NARROWLY ESCAPED

Montreal, May 11.—The fate of the Titanic was narrowly escaped by the steamer Chiltern Range in a collision with an iceberg to the east of Newfoundland banks on her voyage from Hull to this port, where she arrived today. The bow plating of the steamer, a British freighter, were badly dented.

The berg was struck in latitude 46.39 north and longitude 44.40 west, in the track of the ocean liners, but some distance to the north and east of the spot where the Titanic met her fate. After the collision the steamer was surrounded by icebergs which, although they could not be seen because of fog, evidenced their presence by the echoes that resounded from their towering sides at every blast from the steamer's whistle.

"We were going dead slow because of the dense fog," said Captain Rea tonight. "Suddenly an iceberg loomed up to starboard which I estimated to be at least from 150 to 200 feet high. It towered above us. The vessel touched it with her starboard bow, but fortunately the impact only badly dented a couple of her plates. The Chiltern Range struck the berg a glancing blow.

"When the ship slid away from the berg we went to the eastward, but very slowly. We stood away till dark and lay all night with the engines almost stopped. We were surrounded by icebergs, for, though we could not see, we could hear them. After every blast of the whistle a sound like the report of a gun followed twenty or thirty seconds later."

The Seventeenth Amendment.

Two constitutional questions of the utmost importance have lately occupied the attention of the American people. One in the income tax amendment provides for equalization of taxation, fair distribution of the burden of paying the expenses of the government, relief of the masses, sources of sufficiency without excess of revenue, and the consequent saving of the cost of administering the affairs of the country. The popular election of senators amendment is the consummation of representative government, it means representation in fact as well as in name, and it is a re-affirmation of that confidence that the people have the good faith and the intelligence to manage their own affairs, which is the basis of all democratic institutions.

Adoption of the income tax amendment had the effect of simplifying the constitutional situation by concentrating the interest of the public on the twin proposition—election of United States senators by popular vote. The latter amendment—the seventeenth—was ratified more quickly by the requisite number of the states than was any prior proposal by which it was sought to change the constitution. Public opinion was ripe for the event, and the amendment went to the legislatures under singularly felicitous circumstances.

Unlike the majority of constitutional amendments, direct election of senators will not be an experiment. The electorate has had practice in this method of exercising the elective franchise. The people know how it works. Most of the southern states name their United States senators in primaries, and in different western states, the Oregon plan has been adopted.

The primary system of choosing United States senators has various modifications in different states. But all these variations amount to the same thing. The people really elect their senators, the action of the legislature being but the official ratification of what the people have already done.

Votes for Women.

(From Norman E. Mack's National Monthly.)

Nineteen hundred and thirteen has been a record year for suffrage legislation. In five states—Michigan, Nevada, Montana, North and South Dakota—the legislature has passed a suffrage amendment. This amendment was lost in Michigan at the election on April 7, but an initiative petition campaign will be started at once. In the other four states the question of equal suffrage will not be submitted to the voters until the next general election, November, 1914.

In New York, New Jersey and Iowa, suffrage bills have this year passed the legislature and must be approved by the nex legislature. The vote in New York was 125 to 5 in the assembly, and 40 to 2 in the senate. In New Jersey it was 46 to 5 in the assembly and 14 to 5 in the senate, while in Iowa it was 81 to 26 in the house and 31 to 16 in the senate.

The Embassies Abroad.

(From Norman E. Mack's National Monthly.)

The story told by former Ambassador Joseph H. Choate—told by Mr. Choate himself—illustrates the situation with respect to our representatives in foreign countries. He was walking one dark, wet, wintry night on one of the lonesome thoroughfares of London, when he was approached by a policeman with the remark: "Hi say, ould chap, what are you walking about in this beastly weather for? Why don't you go 'ome?"

"I have no home," replied the quick-witted American diplomat, "I am the American ambassador."

WASHINGTON RELICS FOR MOUNT VERNON

Washington, May 11.—Numerous valuable relics connected with General George Washington's public career have been presented by W. Lanier Washington of New York city, to the board of regents of the Mount Vernon Ladies' association, it was announced today. The board is holding its annual meeting at Mount Vernon. The relics will be displayed for the first time this week. Mr. Washington also has the board a reproduction of the only oil portrait ever made of General Washington's mother of which he is the owner. Another valuable gift is the original patent of deed signed by Lord Sulpepper to 5,000 acres of land which subsequently descended to Washington and of which the present Mount Vernon estate is a part. The document is dated 1674 and is in a good state of preservation.

Be Pacific, But Strong.

Paris, May 11.—t the eighth national peace congress, inaugurated here today, a letter was read from ex-Premier Leon Bourgeois, who was unable to attend. "Remembering the disasters of 1870 and 1871," B. Bourgeois wrote, "I do not hesitate to vote for three years' militar yservice, which is now indispensable, in view of the German increase. Be pacific, but strong!"

ALL WORLD ASKED TO FETE OF PEACE

Invitation Issued by Conferees Arranging for Anglo-American Centenary—Time Has Come to Put Ban on War.

New York, May 11.—The nations of the world are urged to join the United States, Great Britain, Canada, Newfoundland and Australia and the municipality of Ghent in making the celebration of 100 years of peace among English-speaking peoples signalize a new era of international good will. The invitation was issued today by the international conferees now in this country arranging this celebration. The American secretary of state and the British secretary of state for foreign affairs are asked to transmit the invitation to other governments.

The Peace Manifesto.

The manifesto adopted by the conferees says:

"Representatives of Great Britain, of Newfoundland, of the United States, of the Dominion of Canada, of the Commonwealth of Australia and of the Municipality of Ghent, having been in conference concerning an appropriate celebration of the centenary of the signing of the treaty of Ghent, which marked the end of the last international war between the British and American peoples, unite in offering to the governments and the peoples of the civilized world an earnest invitation to take part in making this celebration in every way worthy of the 100 years of peace that it commemorates.

"We invite such co-operation to the end that it may be made clearly unmistakable to public opinion everywhere that the time has come when international rivalries and differences, though numerous and severe, may be settled without the carnage and horrors of war. Although it be unreasonable to disregard the possibility of conflict arising in the future, out of mutual or partial misunderstanding, yet we gratefully recognize that the chances of misunderstanding have been largely eliminated by the degree in which modern science has facilitated intercourse and accelerated communication. We are therefore encouraged to hope that the development of letters, science and the arts, of commerce, industry and finance, of mutual knowledge, trust and good feeling on the part of those who owe different allegiances and who speak different tongues may profitably absorb the energy of mankind as well as offer opportunity for the display of the noblest and finest traits of mind and of character.

Touches Every Land.

"Great Britain has been a colonizing nation and the United States has drawn to its populatich various and powerful elements from different countries and from different flags. Therefore a century of peace between Great Britain and her dominions beyond the seas on the one hand and the United States on the other hand, touches directly both the interests and the imagination of every land to which Great Britain's sons have gone, as well as those of every nation from which the present-day population of the United States has been drawn. Such a celebration will not only close a century of exceptional significance and importance, but it will call attention to an example and an ideal that we earnestly hope may be followed and pursued in years to come. What nations have done, nations can do.

"We respectfully request his majesty's secretary of state for foreign affairs to transmit this invitation through the proper official channels to the governments of the world in order that both by the participation of governments and by the co-operation of men of good will in every land this celebration may be so carried out as to mark not merely the close of the one hundred years of peace between English-speaking peoples, but the opening of what we sincerely trust will be a fresh era of peace and good will between all the nations of the world."

To Oppose Beef Combine.

Buenos Ayres, May 11.—The Argentine government is taking measures to oppose the American beef combine in Argentine. The council of ministers will go fully into the question to prevent speculation unfavorable to the home market. The newspapers comment unfavorably on the scalled beef trust, and the Argentine Rural society has called a meeting of cattle breeders to protest against an American monopoly. The minister of agriculture has invited the managers of the American refrigerating plants here to explain their intentions.

Officials of Orange, N. J. Will Inspect Imhoff Disposal Plant

Nine aldermen and two members of the advisory board of Orange, N. J., appointed to make an inspection of Atlanta's new Imhoff tank sewage disposal plants, arrived here yesterday afternoon.

In the party were P. Allen Smith, Henry T. Stetson, Charles F. Coyne, Charles A. Lemaster, John Keaster, Patrick A. Quinn, Owen C. Dolan, Owen P. Casey, Christopher Freeman, Dan F. Gallagher and Stewart Lindsley.

The party will meet Captain R. M. Clayton, chief of construction, at the city hall at 9 o'clock Monday morning. Captain Clayton will take them to Proctor Creek to see the plant in operation, and then to Peachtree Creek. Chief Clayton will endeavor to take the guests for a short ride over the city to inspect the municipal improvements that have been made in the past three years.

The municipalities of Orange, East Orange and Montclair are confronted with the problem of sewage disposal. At present the sewage is carried to the Passaic river, a stream about seven miles long. On account of the rapid growth of the three cities it has become necessary to adopt a system of sewage purification or disposal. The three cities are in close proximity of each other, and the taxpayers are anxious to join in the financing of one system to take care of each city. Bond issues are to be voted in the near future.

"Atlanta's system seems to be far ahead of anything in the United States, and I feel certain that we are going to be impressed with it," said Alderman Stetson last night. "Some time ago the mayor of our city visited Atlanta and returned home with great praise for the Imhoff system."

The party will leave Monday night for Savannah. There the members will board a boat for New York.

The Varsity Boat Race.

Cambridge, Mass., May 11.—The 'varsity eights of Harvard, Princeton and the University of Pennsylvania will be sent away at 4 p. m. tomorrow, for the race was postponed Saturday because of rough water. Dean Briggs, of Harvard, suggested the afternoon hour and this was agreed to. The Pennsylvania and Princeton men received a faculty permission to stay over for a race Monday.
